Court Study Is Approved By Dewey

Victory on Plan Is Won on Legislature Deals; Wicks Leads Fight on Governor Power

Governor Dewey has approved his hard-won plan for a $100,000 commission to study aimed at a "complete re-valuation of the court system in this state," which caused an uprising in the Legislature, led by Senator Arthur H. Wicks of this city.

Wicks, majority leader in the Senate, and lawmakers who backed him, feared consideration of the "Missouri Plan," which they contended would give Dewey much leeway in appointing State Supreme Court justices.

Dewey's approval was announced by his office over the weekend while he was in Washington to confer with President Eisenhower and attend the Gridiron Club dinner, the Associated Press said.

Legislators passed the bill reluctantly, because they feared it eevntually would lead to elimination of the present political system of selecting judges.

Approved on Final Night

They approved the measure on the final night of the session but only, it was reported, after Dewey had agreed in exchange not to press for his controversial plan for compulsory automobile insurance. The insurance bill died in committee in both houses.

The lawmakers went along with the plan with the understanding that (1) the commission would not consider the "Missouri Plan" for selecting judges and (2) that four legislators would be members of the commission.

Originally the bill called for five members, all to be appointed by the Governor. The law now provides for 11 members—two senators and two assemblymen and seven appointees of the Governor.

Wicks Declaration

During the debate on the measure, GOP Senate Leader Arthur H. Wicks said "so long as I'm majority leader of this House and have some influence with the members, there'll be no Missouri court plan approved by this House."

Under the Missouri plan, the Governor would appoint state supreme court justices from a panel of three names recommended by commissions in each judicial district. After the appointee had served for a year, his name would be given to the voters for approval. If elected, he would stay in office until he reached retirement age.

Dewey soft-pedaled his recommendations about changing the method of selecting judges in his memorandum accompanying approval of the bill.

He merely said improvements "ought to be thoroughly explored."

Subjects for Study

Ryan Is Arrested For $11,390 Theft of Longshore Money

Claims Funds Used to Fight Communists; Appears Weary and Worn in Visit to DA Office

New York, April 13 (AP)—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, was arrested today on charges of stealing $11,390 of the union's funds.

A grand jury accused the heavyset, 69-year-old dock workers boss of siphoning off union money for these, among other, personal expenses:

Dues in golf and country clubs for himself and friends, buying clothing, premiums on his and his wife's life insurance policies, taxes on his Long Island summer home.

If convicted on each of the 30 counts in the grand larceny indictment, Ryan could get up to 82½ to 165 years in prison.

His arrest was announced by District Attorney Frank Hogan, shortly after Ryan had been summoned to Hogan's office.

Before he entered the office, Ryan told reporters: "I still don't know why I'm here," but he speculated that it concerned money he claimed he had used for fighting Communists.

"We've done a pretty good job in fighting these Commies," he said. "Every time the Communists were active, we had to spend money and you know how much money they have."

Ryan appeared weary, and his face wore a dark stubble of beard when he showed up at the DA's office with a personal bodyguard.

Later, flanked by detectives, he walked about five blocks in a drizzling rain to a police station to be booked, fingerprinted and photographed.

Nervous During Ordeal

Ryan, usually stern and blunt-spoken, seemed nervous during the procedure. He whistled softly to himself part of the time, and lit one cigarette after another.

He has ruled the turbulent east and gulf coast dock union since 1927.

The thefts allegedly occurred between April 14, 1948 and April 16, 1951.

Ryan, $20,000-a-year lifetime head of the union, had been under grand jury investigation since last January, when a state crime hearing brought out he had used union money for personal expenses.

30-Count Indictment

The 30-count indictment includes three counts of larceny in the first degree, and 27 county of larceny in the second degree.

The announcement said the gand jury's investigation "is continuing regarding the withdrawal of funds from the ILA as well as other phases of his (Ryan's) activities."

The indictment was described as preliminary. It was handed down in that form at present because the statute of limitations (five

Town of Ulster Man Is Held As Reckless Driver After Crash

George Johnson Will Have Hearing on April 20 Before Justice Smith

Three persons were injured at 11:35 p. m. Sunday when the car of Deputy Sheriff George A. Reynolds, 59, of Woodstock and a car owned and operated by George Johnson, 26, of 8 Hemlock street, Town of Ulster, were in collision on the Onteora Trail at the Avalon Inn. A third car, parked at the Avalon, was damaged. That car was owned by Cor Kuypers, 31, a tug boat captain residing at Glenford.

At the time Reynolds was on his way to Kingston to report for duty on the midnight shift at the court house. Johnson was proceeding west on route 28 and attempted to make a turn to the Avalon. Johnson was placed under arrest on a reckless driving charge and held in $25 bail for a hearing on April 20 at 7 p. m. before Justice Bernard Smith of the town of Kingston.

Both Reynolds and Johnson were taken to the Kingston Hospital where they were discharged after being treated.

Hanechak Hospitalized

John Hanechak, 28, of 37-35 64th street, Woodside, L. I., a passenger in the Johnson car, received a back injury, laceration of the scalp, laceration of the knees and other injuries and remained at the hospital. Johnson and Hanechak were taken to the hospital by ambulance and Reynolds was taken to the hospital by Undersheriff Clayton W. Vredenburgh. Reynolds suffered from

Application Denied On Making Clerk Give Out Figures

New York Attorney Says New Paltz Property Not Properly Assessed

Supreme Court Justice William Deckelman has denied an application for a writ of mandamus sought by Ralph Gabrielli, petitioner, in an action against Town Clerk Raymond Terpening by which Gabrielli sought to compel the officials of the town of New Paltz to make available to him the assessment rolls and other public records of the town. Gabrielli, an attorney from New York who has a residence in the town of New Paltz, has brought allegations that property in the town is not properly assessed.

Appearing before Justice Deckelman at an adjourned special term here last week, Gabrielli sought by mandamus to secure an order of the court directing the town officials to open the assessment books to him.

Says Records Available

Justice Deckelman denied the application on the grounds the records were now available and no writ was necessary.

Peter Harp appeared for the town officials and informed the court that the books were open to inspection as provided by the law and he further stated that the records were in court. Supervisor Frank G. Elliott of New Paltz was also present in court and with other officials and Justice Deckelman recessed the matter to allow the parties to get together and discuss the matter and to permit the petitioner an opportunity to examine the books and records. It was stated that it was impossible to bring all of the records to court and that other records, not in court, would be available to petitioner in the town hall.

Figures Must Be Shown

Justice Deckelman stated that he would deny the mandamus application at this time but if the practitioner was not permitted to examine the records, as prescribed by the law, he would then consider the application.

Gabrielli charged that assessments in the town were excessive in instances and claimed his own assessment had been reduced on his application from $11,000 to $5,000. He contended that as-

Knowland Proposes UN Demand Freedom at Polls in Korea to Try Soviet Faith

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) proposed today that the United Nations test the faith of Russian peace moves with a demand for free elections that might unite Korea.

Knowland, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, joined Sens. Taft (R.-Ohio) and Wiley (R.-Wis.) in casting doubt on the Kremlin's sincerity and in cautioning against letting the free world's guard down.

Knowland flew to San Francisco today to address a meeting of the California State Dental Association. In a prepared text, made available here, he suggested the Communists may want a truce in Korea so Russia can have a year or two to stockpile atomic bombs while it hopes the free world disarms.

Need Acid Test

"It becomes greatly important that we now give the acid test to determine the good faith of these Communist proposals," he said. "A clear demonstration would be on their attitude toward the immediate holding of United Nations supervised free elections in North Korea.

"Then, with a United free Korea, the United Nations and the great powers should guarantee the independence, the territorial integrity and the neutrality of the Republic of Korea."

He said "a divided Korea means a Communist Korea."

Knowland suggested as further tests efforts to get an Austrian peace treaty ratified, and moves to force the holdings of free elections in Poland and in Communist-dominated China.

Knowland's view about Soviet agreement to an Austrian peace treaty jibes with expressions by two foreign leaders — German

Board Told Funds Insufficient to Make Capital Changes

Accountants Ronder & Ronder, reporting on their audit of the water department for the year which ended Dec. 31, 1952, said: "the cash position of your department is becoming such that you will soon have to borrow funds to meet current expenses."

The report said surplus earnings at present are insufficient to finance capital improvements in the near future and it proposed a bond issue to meet such improvements. It also foresaw the possibility of increased water rates.

A brief review of some phases of water department finances, as far back as 1935 shows that on July 1 of that year the water board reduced rates from $6 a year for the first faucet to $4 a year for the first faucet.

This was a decrease of about $12,000 a year in annual revenue.

The lower rate lasted for less than two years, however, and on April 1, 1937 the board returned to the rate of $6 a year for the first faucet. This brought back the approximately $12,000 a year in revenue.

Funds Transferred Twice

In 1938 the city, by Common Council action, took $60,000 from the water department funds and transferred it to the city's general fund. Again in 1939, $35,000 was taken from the water department funds and transferred to the general fund.

Action of the water board, however, stopped a move to transfer $50,000 from the water department's funds to the city's general fund in 1952.

Audit Report Given

The following is the letter from Ronder & Ronder to the water board:

No Clue Is Apparent in County Fire

Prison Guard Loses His Life Trying to Save Wife and 4 Children; 4 Die in Dutchess

Fire of undetermined origin wiped out an Ellenville family of six early today, and four small children were fatally burned in a blaze attributed to a faulty oil burner in a rural home near Rhinebeck early Sunday morning.

Vaughn Decker, 30, a guard at the Woodbourne correctional institution near Ellenville, apparently died in a futile effort to save his wife and their four small sons.

The others, who died in the blaze, were Decker's wife, Mary, 27, and their sons, Richard, 5, Stephen, 4, Carey, 2, and Vaughn, Jr., eight months.

Overcome by Smoke

Decker's body was found fully clothed on the living room floor of the Deckers' 100-year-old, rural, frame home. Police said he apparently was overcome by smoke as he sought to reach the other members of the family, who were asleep. Decker had finished his tour of duty at midnight.

The bodies of Mrs. Decker and the four children were burned beyond recognition.

Police said they could find no clue to the cause of the blaze. Firemen said it may have started in the basement, where there was a newly-installed oil burner, or in the kitchen.

Verdicts Are Issued

Coroner Michael Galietta, of Glasco, issued verdicts of accidental deaths by fire.

Units from the Woodbourne fire department battled the blaze for several hours before bringing it under control.

The Decker home, which had recently been remodeled, is about five miles west of Ellenville.

The dead in the fire near Rhinebeck were listed as Audrey Nero, 10; her sister, Agnes, 6; Dennis Storms, 5, and his sister, Rose Mary Storms, 2.

Will Clear Brickyard For New Bridge Piers

Fifteen buildings on the former Rose Brothers' brickyard below Goldrick's Landing will be offered for sale at public auction Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the court house. The buildings consist of former residences of workmen and are to be removed from the premises by the successful bidders within a month following the sale.

Some Land for Span

The brickyard has not been operated for years and the County of Ulster acquired title to the property through tax sale. The county now seeks to sell the structures since a portion of the land will be used for the construction of piers for the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge.

At the last meeting of the board of supervisors a resolution was adopted authorizing sale of the structures at public auction. Located off the Flatbush road, the buildings may be inspected at any time by prospective bidders. Each building is marked by number and they will be offered for sale by number.

The successful bidder or bidders must relieve the county of any injury or damage claim arising out of the removal of the structures.

June Graduates of KHS May Take County Tests

High school graduates who will complete their study this June will be eligible to take the examinations to be held on May 16 by the Ulster County Civil Service Commission for typists and stenographers, Thomas Bohan, executive secretary, said today.

An open competitive examination will be held on May 16 from which an eligible list will be made up. The last date for filing applications will be April 20. At present six vacancies for typist exist and two vacancies for stenographer. The salary range is from $2,180 to $2,480, including a $240 cost of living adjustment.

Candidates must have been a legal resident of the state and Ulster county for at least a year prior to examination date. Application blanks and further information may be secured from the Ulster County Civil Service Commission, 32 Main street. There is no age limit, other than the state law restricting employment of persons under 18 years of age and the state Retirement Law which sets a compulsory retirement at 70 years.

Raging North Sea Hits Again At Isle Swamped in February

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, April 13 (AP)—The North Sea, racing through the English Channel under the impact of a storm center, regained complete control today over the island of Duiveland, one of worst hit areas in the disastrous Feb. 1 floods.

On the eve of a new spring tide which reaches its peak next Tuesday, the racing North Sea waters overwhelmed at several spots an inner dyke guarding the 2110-acre Bruinisse Polder (reclaimed land) at the island's eastern extremity. It had been reclaimed only four weeks ago from the earlier flood waters.

On the other end of the island, the emergency dykes of the 860 acres Burgh-and-Westland Polder were punctured, flooding the polder which reclamation workers had almost pumped dry.

The hurricane-lashed North Sea waters submerged Schouwen and and Duiveland islands in the Feb. 1 floods, killing 519 of the 1,783 inhabitants.

In the Bruinisse inner dyke, 45-yard gaps were torn. Volunteers worked feverishly to build new sendbag water barriers in the island.

Oklahoma Wars on Rattlers Before Spring Awakening

Waynoka, Okla., April 13 (AP)—An estimated 18,000 gunless hunters stalked sleepy-eyed, for deadly rattlesnakes in the hills around Waynoka yesterday and brought back over a thousand wiggling reptiles—alive.

The hunt, which kicks off the rattlesnake "season" in Oklahoma, will be followed next week by the famous annual Okeene, Okla., rattler roundup, considered the daddy of them all.

As certain as the coming of spring, each year thrill-seekers and experienced snake handlers from all over the nation pack the little northwestern Oklahoma communities beyond the bursting point to track down their venom-laden quarry.

Dangerous? Yes, but not as bad as it may sound.

Rattler-wise hunters who wouldn't come within a country mile of their fangs in summer and fall know they can battle it out on even terms in April and come out ahead, alive, and usually unbitten.

The snakes are emerging from a winter-long sleep and are

Soldiers, Marines Rehearse Details for POW Exchange

Munsan, Korea, April 13 (AP)—Allied soldiers and marines today staged a dress rehearsal covering every detail of the exchange of sick and wounded Korean war prisoners, which begins next Monday.

United Nations and Communist staff officers earlier today settled final details of the dramatic exchange. The agreement was signed Saturday in a ceremony at Panmunjom.

At the signing the Reds submitted their latest request for renewal of full-scale armistice talks, broken off by the UN last Oct. 8. The UN has not replied.

Peiping radio announced the first convoy of sick and wounded allied prisoners would start for the exchange site today. The 23 vehicles will arrive at Kaesong Thursday and remain there four days before the actual swap begins. The UN pressed for an earlier start but the Reds refused.

U. S. Marines, British and South Korean troops played the part of sick and wounded prisoners as UN medical and security personnel

Would Test Peace Plan With Votes

Knowland Proposes UN Demand Freedom at Polls in Korea to Try Soviet Faith

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R.-Calif.) proposed today that the United Nations test the faith of Russian peace moves with a demand for free elections that might unite Korea.

Knowland, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, joined Sens. Taft (R.-Ohio) and Wiley (R.-Wis.) in casting doubt on the Kremlin's sincerity and in cautioning against letting the free world's guard down.

Knowland flew to San Francisco today to address a meeting of the California State Dental Association. In a prepared text, made available here, he suggested the Communists may want a truce in Korea so Russia can have a year or two to stockpile atomic bombs while it hopes the free world disarms.

Need Acid Test

"It becomes greatly important that we now give the acid test to determine the good faith of these Communist proposals," he said. "A clear demonstration would be on their attitude toward the immediate holding of United Nations supervised free elections in North Korea.

"Then, with a United free Korea, the United Nations and the great powers should guarantee the independence, the territorial integrity and the neutrality of the Republic of Korea."

He said "a divided Korea means a Communist Korea."

Knowland suggested as further tests efforts to get an Austrian peace treaty ratified, and moves to force the holdings of free elections in Poland and in Communist-dominated China.

Knowland's view about Soviet agreement to an Austrian peace treaty jibes with expressions by two foreign leaders — German

Board Told Funds Insufficient to Make Capital Changes

Accountants Ronder & Ronder, reporting on their audit of the water department for the year which ended Dec. 31, 1952, said: "the cash position of your department is becoming such that you will soon have to borrow funds to meet current expenses."

The report said surplus earnings at present are insufficient to finance capital improvements in the near future and it proposed a bond issue to meet such improvements. It also foresaw the possibility of increased water rates.

A brief review of some phases of water department finances, as far back as 1935 shows that on July 1 of that year the water board reduced rates from $6 a year for the first faucet to $4 a year for the first faucet.

This was a decrease of about $12,000 a year in annual revenue.

The lower rate lasted for less than two years, however, and on April 1, 1937 the board returned to the rate of $6 a year for the first faucet. This brought back the approximately $12,000 a year in revenue.

Funds Transferred Twice

In 1938 the city, by Common Council action, took $60,000 from the water department funds and transferred it to the city's general fund. Again in 1939, $35,000 was taken from the water department funds and transferred to the general fund.

Action of the water board, however, stopped a move to transfer $50,000 from the water department's funds to the city's general fund in 1952.

Audit Report Given

The following is the letter from Ronder & Ronder to the water board:

Prison Guard Loses His Life Trying to Save Wife and 4 Children; 4 Die in Dutchess

Fire of undetermined origin wiped out an Ellenville family of six early today, and four small children were fatally burned in a blaze attributed to a faulty oil burner in a rural home near Rhinebeck early Sunday morning.

Vaughn Decker, 30, a guard at the Woodbourne correctional institution near Ellenville, apparently died in a futile effort to save his wife and their four small sons.

The others, who died in the blaze, were Decker's wife, Mary, 27, and their sons, Richard, 5, Stephen, 4, Carey, 2, and Vaughn, Jr., eight months.

Overcome by Smoke

Decker's body was found fully clothed on the living room floor of the Deckers' 100-year-old, rural, frame home. Police said he apparently was overcome by smoke as he sought to reach the other members of the family, who were asleep. Decker had finished his tour of duty at midnight.

The bodies of Mrs. Decker and the four children were burned beyond recognition.

Police said they could find no clue to the cause of the blaze. Firemen said it may have started in the basement, where there was a newly-installed oil burner, or in the kitchen.

Verdicts Are Issued

Coroner Michael Galietta, of Glasco, issued verdicts of accidental deaths by fire.

Units from the Woodbourne fire department battled the blaze for several hours before bringing it under control.

The Decker home, which had recently been remodeled, is about five miles west of Ellenville.

The dead in the fire near Rhinebeck were listed as Audrey Nero, 10; her sister, Agnes, 6; Dennis Storms, 5, and his sister, Rose Mary Storms, 2.

Will Clear Brickyard For New Bridge Piers

Fifteen buildings on the former Rose Brothers' brickyard below Goldrick's Landing will be offered for sale at public auction Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the court house. The buildings consist of former residences of workmen and are to be removed from the premises by the successful bidders within a month following the sale.

Some Land for Span

The brickyard has not been operated for years and the County of Ulster acquired title to the property through tax sale. The county now seeks to sell the structures since a portion of the land will be used for the construction of piers for the Kingston-Rhinebeck bridge.

At the last meeting of the board of supervisors a resolution was adopted authorizing sale of the structures at public auction. Located off the Flatbush road, the buildings may be inspected at any time by prospective bidders. Each building is marked by number and they will be offered for sale by number.

The successful bidder or bidders must relieve the county of any injury or damage claim arising out of the removal of the structures.

June Graduates of KHS May Take County Tests

High school graduates who will complete their study this June will be eligible to take the examinations to be held on May 16 by the Ulster County Civil Service Commission for typists and stenographers, Thomas Bohan, executive secretary, said today.

An open competitive examination will be held on May 16 from which an eligible list will be made up. The last date for filing applications will be April 20. At present six vacancies for typist exist and two vacancies for stenographer. The salary range is from $2,180 to $2,480, including a $240 cost of living adjustment.

Candidates must have been a legal resident of the state and Ulster county for at least a year prior to examination date. Application blanks and further information may be secured from the Ulster County Civil Service Commission, 32 Main street. There is no age limit, other than the state law restricting employment of persons under 18 years of age and the state Retirement Law which sets a compulsory retirement at 70 years.

Raging North Sea Hits Again At Isle Swamped in February

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, April 13 (AP)—The North Sea, racing through the English Channel under the impact of a storm center, regained complete control today over the island of Duiveland, one of worst hit areas in the disastrous Feb. 1 floods.

On the eve of a new spring tide which reaches its peak next Tuesday, the racing North Sea waters overwhelmed at several spots an inner dyke guarding the 2110-acre Bruinisse Polder (reclaimed land) at the island's eastern extremity. It had been reclaimed only four weeks ago from the earlier flood waters.

On the other end of the island, the emergency dykes of the 860 acres Burgh-and-Westland Polder were punctured, flooding the polder which reclamation workers had almost pumped dry.

The hurricane-lashed North Sea waters submerged Schouwen and and Duiveland islands in the Feb. 1 floods, killing 519 of the 1,783 inhabitants.

Oklahoma Wars on Rattlers Before Spring Awakening

Waynoka, Okla., April 13 (AP)—An estimated 18,000 gunless hunters stalked sleepy-eyed, for deadly rattlesnakes in the hills around Waynoka yesterday and brought back over a thousand wiggling reptiles—alive.

The hunt, which kicks off the rattlesnake "season" in Oklahoma, will be followed next week by the famous annual Okeene, Okla., rattler roundup, considered the daddy of them all.

As certain as the coming of spring, each year thrill-seekers and experienced snake handlers from all over the nation pack the little northwestern Oklahoma communities beyond the bursting point to track down their venom-laden quarry.

Dangerous? Yes, but not as bad as it may sound.

Rattler-wise hunters who wouldn't come within a country mile of their fangs in summer and fall know they can battle it out on even terms in April and come out ahead, alive, and usually unbitten.

The snakes are emerging from a winter-long sleep and are

Soldiers, Marines Rehearse Details for POW Exchange

Munsan, Korea, April 13 (AP)—Allied soldiers and marines today staged a dress rehearsal covering every detail of the exchange of sick and wounded Korean war prisoners, which begins next Monday.

United Nations and Communist staff officers earlier today settled final details of the dramatic exchange. The agreement was signed Saturday in a ceremony at Panmunjom.

At the signing the Reds submitted their latest request for renewal of full-scale armistice talks, broken off by the UN last Oct. 8. The UN has not replied.

Peiping radio announced the first convoy of sick and wounded allied prisoners would start for the exchange site today. The 23 vehicles will arrive at Kaesong Thursday and remain there four days before the actual swap begins. The UN pressed for an earlier start but the Reds refused.

U. S. Marines, British and South Korean troops played the part of sick and wounded prisoners as UN medical and security personnel

Would Test

Chancellor Adenauer and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Would Show True Desire

Tito—in an interview at Belgrade April 6, published in a copyrighted article today by U. S. News and World Report — said such action, plus Soviet agreement to unify Germany, would show a true desire for peace. But Tito, the only Red ruler to have split with the Kremlin, foresaw no end now to the cold war.

Adenauer was quoted during his talks with U. S. officials last week in Washington as saying Russia could best show peaceful intent by accord on Austria peace, German unification and withdrawal of aid to the Chinese Reds in Korea.

The question of American aid to the Far East, with a possible shift of U. S. grants from western Europe to the Orient, was explored by Secretary of State Dulles in testimony March 18 before a House Appropriations Subcommittee.

Dulles Testimony

In his testimony, made public yesterday, Dulles said:

1. The U. S. contribution to the North Atlantic allies, to be considered this month in Paris, "could be considerably less" than now.

2. More help for Indochina, where the French have been fighting a long guerilla war against the Communists, might permit large cutbacks there later.

3. More money may be needed to put lagging deliveries of promised goods to Formosa, the seat of Nationalist China, back on schedule.

Taft, the Senate Republican leader, and Wiley, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, voiced their skepticism of the Soviet peace overtures in weekend interviews.

Taft said he thinks "Russia is trying to fool us." He said the west must not be lulled into letting its military defense deteriorate or agreeing to an unstable truce in Korea.

The Ohioan said he doubts the Reds will agree to any truce in Korea except at the present battle line. But with such a truce, he said, "war might occur again at any time."

Can't Be Divided

South Korean President Syngman Rhee agreed but in much more vigorous terms. He urged nothing short of unification, saying in a statement radioed yesterday to his country's embassy here:

"Any settlement of the Korean War which leaves us divided will be considered by our people as appeasement of the Communists."

Wiley cautioned that Russia may be switching its aggression from Asia to the near east "and a bridge to Africa—that's their primary objective."

"The Communist peace offers are phony," he declared.

Wiley's suggestion that the Soviet may want to extend the iron curtain across the middle east into Africa was viewed in some quarters as indicating a possible change in administration thinking.

The administration heretofore has been regarded as believing the Communists would strike first at another point in Asia, possibly Indochina, if Korean hostilities end.

President Eisenhower has said the Russian peace overtures must be accepted at face value until proven false.

Congress to Be Busy

Washington, April 13 (AP)—The Easter vacation ends for the House today, and both it and the Senate have been alerted to expect a hard work schedule from here on if they want to adjourn early in July. Long daily sessions and frequent Saturday meetings are likely. But before buckling down to the legislative grind, the lawmakers will take something of a breather to allow members who wish to watch the Washington senators and the New York Yankees open the American League baseball season this afternoon.

Deer Breaks Leg, Shot

A buck deer, which came to town over Hurley avenue at about 10:30 a. m., today, was shot by local police after it broke a leg at the municipal stadium. Officers Edward Leonard and Gurnsey Burger, Jr., were sent to the stadium soon after the animal was reported making its way through town. It became frightened inside the stadium grounds and broke the leg in a dash against the stadium fence. Game Warden William Goodman took over, after the animal was shot, and made arrangements to supply a local institution with venison.

Mayor Has Praise For Boys Clubs in City Proclamation

Boys' clubs throughout the nation are doing "a splendid, noble and useful work in making recreation for growing boys constructive," Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today in proclaiming April 13 through 19 "National Boys Club Week."

"Leaders in boys' clubs are not only teachers of teamwork in gymnasiums, vocations and trades in the shop, arts and crafts in the workshops, but they are conscientious people of high moral calibre, who can and do give boys expert and sympathetic advice on vocational and scholastic problems, and they help with emotional problems," the mayor said.

Covers All Phases

The clubs, he said, have library shelves "full of knowledge and good purpose for boys." Civic-minded doctors and nurses and others lend a hand to improve the health of the boys, and "every phase of the boy's physical, mental and moral existance is covered by the specialists in building tomorrow's citizens."

It is the growing boy he said, "who will go to tomorrow's election polls, occupy tomorrow's businesses, trades and professions." He can only grow into a "stalwart, worthwhile American, if he is given the stuff of which good citizenship is made. I believe that boys' clubs have just that stuff."

Texas Ace Shoots Down Another MIG

Seoul, April 13 (AP)—A Texas jet ace shot down another Red jet fighter today as clear weather brought more battles between allied Sabres and Communist MIGs.

On Sunday, allied Sabres destroyed seven MIGs and probably destroyed another.

The ground war continued unabated on the 155-mile front, allied soldiers and Reds mixed in 29 small fights last night and early today. One was only a mile from Panmunjom, where allied and Communist staff officers today completed arrangements for next Monday's exchange of sick and wounded prisoners.

The battleship New Jersey returned to Korean action and unlimbered her 16-inch guns on Communist targets in Chongjin, in deep northeast Korea. Seventy-five navy war planes and the cruiser Los Angeles joined in slashing Red east coast strong points, the navy said.

Yanks Rained Out

New York, April 13 (AP)—Cincinnati had the baseball scene all to itself today for its opening game with Milwaukee after rain washed out the scheduled New York Yankee-Washington opener at Griffith Stadium. Washington rescheduled today's game and opening ceremonies for Thursday at 2 p. m. (EST) as part of a day-night doubleheader. The second game will go on, as planned, at 8:30 p. m. (EST).

Promises Polk Evidence

Recommend Vigilance

Paris, April 13 (AP)—The Socialist International Executive Committee today called upon the western democracies to remain "armed and vigilant" in the face of Russia's peace offensive, pending real collective security and disarmament.

Financial and Commercial

BY RADER WINGET

New York, April 13 (AP)—The stock market held to a fairly steady course today with trading on the quiet side.

Gains ran to around a point at the outside with losses fractional. The upside of the list was slightly more popular.

The best gainers showed up in the aircrafts, and some good plus signs appeared in steels, motors, utilities, and in scattered areas.

Railroads were mixed but higher on balance. Coppers were down and there were some losers in oils, distillers, merchandising shares, and chemicals.

Attention was focused on a few individual stocks. The steels, motors and rails were more active than other divisions of the market but even here the action was not fast by any means.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Lockheed, Philco, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, and Gulf Oil.

years) was running out on three of the alleged thefts.

Ryan has headed the rough-and-tough East Coast Dock Workers Union for 25 years.

He claims that some money he took out of union accounts went for fighting Communists on the waterfront.

A long-time declaimer against Reds, Ryan got Harry Bridges out of the ILA in 1936 after calling Bridges a Communist tool.

Bridges, who promptly set up his rival west coast dock union, now is appealing a Federal Court sentence for lying in his denial he ever was a Communist.

Told to Clean Union

Since the state crime hearing, the beefy, hardboiled Ryan has been under fire in the AFL, of which he is a vice president. The AFL's executive council some weeks ago called him on the carpet, and told him to clean up his union, or be ousted.

As Ryan talked with reporters today, he appeared tired and nervous.

Before he entered Hogan's office, the husky Ryan said:

"I still don't know why I'm here. If it is an indictment, I don't like to be indicted at my stage of the game."

The grand jury investigation stemmed from testimony by Ryan before a State Crime Commission last January that he had added union funds to his own personal accounts.

Soldiers, Marines

held a realistic dress rehearsal for the exchange.

Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U. S. Eighth Army commander, headed an array of high officers who witnessed the drill five miles south of Panmunjom.

At the truce village earlier, the Communists handed over a further breakdown of nationalities of the 600 ailing POWs they said they would exchange.

The Reds said a group of 15 not previously identified would include prisoners from Turkey, Canada, Greece, the Netherlands, the Philippines, South Africa, Australia and Colombia.

The Reds previously announced the prisoners they would return included 450 South Koreans, 120 Americans and 20 British soldiers. The allies will return 5,800 sick and wounded — 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese.

Today's dress rehearsal included both the giving and the taking of prisoners. The first stage was an enactment of delivery of Red prisoners. The second was the receiving of allied POWS and moving them to Freedom Village near Munsan for medical treatment and processing.

000 of Water bonds and interest will be due October 1, 1953 and you may experience some difficulty in meeting these obligations.

If the Board contemplates any substantial capital improvements in the near future, we would suggest that same be financed by a bond issue as your Surplus Earnings are at present insufficient to meet such demands.

In this connection, it may be necessary to increase water rates to meet the additional interest charges that a new bond issue will require. In our opinion, this latter course will become necessary unless all contemplated construction projects are scrapped.

We shall be pleased to discuss this matter further and to furnish you with any additional information you may require.

Supervisors Will Meet Wednesday

A meeting of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors will be held Wednesday evening at the court house at 8 o'clock.

At that time the board is expected to take action on the proposition of whether the office of County Commissioner of Public Welfare shall be an elective or appointive office. At the last meeting the board adopted a resolution favoring then pending legislation which was designed to permit appointment of the Ulster county welfare commissioner or elect as has been the custom in the past. 26 Plead Innocence

Nairobi, Kenya, April 13 (AP)—Pleas of innocence were entered today by 26 Mau Mau suspects charged with the murder of a Kikuyu woman, one of four wives of a village headman. Their trial is the first in a series stemming from the massacre of 120 pro-British Kikuyu tribesmen by adherents of Mau Mau at Lari last March 26. Would Test

Chancellor Adenauer and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Would Show True Desire

Tito—in an interview at Belgrade April 6, published in a copyrighted article today by U. S. News and World Report — said such action, plus Soviet agreement to unify Germany, would show a true desire for peace. But Tito, the only Red ruler to have split with the Kremlin, foresaw no end now to the cold war.

Adenauer was quoted during his talks with U. S. officials last week in Washington as saying Russia could best show peaceful intent by accord on Austria peace, German unification and withdrawal of aid to the Chinese Reds in Korea.

The question of American aid to the Far East, with a possible shift of U. S. grants from western Europe to the Orient, was explored by Secretary of State Dulles in testimony March 18 before a House Appropriations Subcommittee.

Dulles Testimony

In his testimony, made public yesterday, Dulles said:

1. The U. S. contribution to the North Atlantic allies, to be considered this month in Paris, "could be considerably less" than now.

2. More help for Indochina, where the French have been fighting a long guerilla war against the Communists, might permit large cutbacks there later.

3. More money may be needed to put lagging deliveries of promised goods to Formosa, the seat of Nationalist China, back on schedule.

Taft, the Senate Republican leader, and Wiley, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, voiced their skepticism of the Soviet peace overtures in weekend interviews.

Taft said he thinks "Russia is trying to fool us." He said the west must not be lulled into letting its military defense deteriorate or agreeing to an unstable truce in Korea.

The Ohioan said he doubts the Reds will agree to any truce in Korea except at the present battle line. But with such a truce, he said, "war might occur again at any time."

Can't Be Divided

South Korean President Syngman Rhee agreed but in much more vigorous terms. He urged nothing short of unification, saying in a statement radioed yesterday to his country's embassy here:

"Any settlement of the Korean War which leaves us divided will be considered by our people as appeasement of the Communists."

Wiley cautioned that Russia may be switching its aggression from Asia to the near east "and a bridge to Africa—that's their primary objective."

"The Communist peace offers are phony," he declared.

Wiley's suggestion that the Soviet may want to extend the iron curtain across the middle east into Africa was viewed in some quarters as indicating a possible change in administration thinking.

The administration heretofore has been regarded as believing the Communists would strike first at another point in Asia, possibly Indochina, if Korean hostilities end.

President Eisenhower has said the Russian peace overtures must be accepted at face value until proven false.

Congress to Be Busy

Washington, April 13 (AP)—The Easter vacation ends for the House today, and both it and the Senate have been alerted to expect a hard work schedule from here on if they want to adjourn early in July. Long daily sessions and frequent Saturday meetings are likely. But before buckling down to the legislative grind, the lawmakers will take something of a breather to allow members who wish to watch the Washington senators and the New York Yankees open the American League baseball season this afternoon.

Deer Breaks Leg, Shot

A buck deer, which came to town over Hurley avenue at about 10:30 a. m., today, was shot by local police after it broke a leg at the municipal stadium. Officers Edward Leonard and Gurnsey Burger, Jr., were sent to the stadium soon after the animal was reported making its way through town. It became frightened inside the stadium grounds and broke the leg in a dash against the stadium fence. Game Warden William Goodman took over, after the animal was shot, and made arrangements to supply a local institution with venison.

Mayor Has Praise For Boys Clubs in City Proclamation

Boys' clubs throughout the nation are doing "a splendid, noble and useful work in making recreation for growing boys constructive," Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk said today in proclaiming April 13 through 19 "National Boys Club Week."

"Leaders in boys' clubs are not only teachers of teamwork in gymnasiums, vocations and trades in the shop, arts and crafts in the workshops, but they are conscientious people of high moral calibre, who can and do give boys expert and sympathetic advice on vocational and scholastic problems, and they help with emotional problems," the mayor said.

Covers All Phases

The clubs, he said, have library shelves "full of knowledge and good purpose for boys." Civic-minded doctors and nurses and others lend a hand to improve the health of the boys, and "every phase of the boy's physical, mental and moral existance is covered by the specialists in building tomorrow's citizens."

It is the growing boy he said, "who will go to tomorrow's election polls, occupy tomorrow's businesses, trades and professions." He can only grow into a "stalwart, worthwhile American, if he is given the stuff of which good citizenship is made. I believe that boys' clubs have just that stuff."

Texas Ace Shoots Down Another MIG

Seoul, April 13 (AP)—A Texas jet ace shot down another Red jet fighter today as clear weather brought more battles between allied Sabres and Communist MIGs.

On Sunday, allied Sabres destroyed seven MIGs and probably destroyed another.

The ground war continued unabated on the 155-mile front, allied soldiers and Reds mixed in 29 small fights last night and early today. One was only a mile from Panmunjom, where allied and Communist staff officers today completed arrangements for next Monday's exchange of sick and wounded prisoners.

The battleship New Jersey returned to Korean action and unlimbered her 16-inch guns on Communist targets in Chongjin, in deep northeast Korea. Seventy-five navy war planes and the cruiser Los Angeles joined in slashing Red east coast strong points, the navy said.

Yanks Rained Out

New York, April 13 (AP)—Cincinnati had the baseball scene all to itself today for its opening game with Milwaukee after rain washed out the scheduled New York Yankee-Washington opener at Griffith Stadium. The Yankees now will start their bid for an unprecedented fifth straight pennant at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow against the Philadelphia A's. Washington rescheduled today's game and opening ceremonies for Thursday at 2 p. m. (EST) as part of a day-night doubleheader. The second game will go on, as planned, at 8:30 p. m. (EST).

Order Troops Out

Hanoi, Indochina, April 13 (AP)—The French high command announced today that French Union troops have been ordered to withdraw from Samneua, key city on the border between Laos and Viet Nam. The announcement said the troops had been ordered to pull back to the interior of Laos. The withdrawal was started last night, and is being carried out without contact with the Communist-led Vietminh. Samneua, a city of about 80,000 population, is 120 miles southeast of Hanoi.

Promises Polk Evidence

Recommend Vigilance

Paris, April 13 (AP)—The Socialist International Executive Committee today called upon the western democracies to remain "armed and vigilant" in the face of Russia's peace offensive, pending real collective security and disarmament.

Tried to Avoid Collision

According to the report filed the Reynolds car was proceeding toward Kingston when the Johnson car made a left turn to enter the Avalon. Reynolds attempted to swing around the car but was unable to and the Mercury of Johnson was struck and damaged about the right rear side. The Johnson car then spun around and struck the Kuypers car in the rear doing damage. Johnson is a truck driver engaged in driving for a milk firm. The Ford car operated by Reynolds was badly damaged about the front end.

The steps of the Avalon were also damaged when one of the cars struck the Inn.

At the time of the accident the pavement was reported to have been wet but it was not raining at the time.

Financial and Commercial

BY RADER WINGET

New York, April 13 (AP)—The stock market held to a fairly steady course today with trading on the quiet side.

Gains ran to around a point at the outside with losses fractional. The upside of the list was slightly more popular.

The best gainers showed up in the aircrafts, and some good plus signs appeared in steels, motors, utilities, and in scattered areas.

Railroads were mixed but higher on balance. Coppers were down and there were some losers in oils, distillers, merchandising shares, and chemicals.

Attention was focused on a few individual stocks. The steels, motors and rails were more active than other divisions of the market but even here the action was not fast by any means.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Lockheed, Philco, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, and Gulf Oil.

years) was running out on three of the alleged thefts.

Ryan has headed the rough-and-tough East Coast Dock Workers Union for 25 years.

He claims that some money he took out of union accounts went for fighting Communists on the waterfront.

A long-time declaimer against Reds, Ryan got Harry Bridges out of the ILA in 1936 after calling Bridges a Communist tool.

Bridges, who promptly set up his rival west coast dock union, now is appealing a Federal Court sentence for lying in his denial he ever was a Communist.

Told to Clean Union

Since the state crime hearing, the beefy, hardboiled Ryan has been under fire in the AFL, of which he is a vice president. The AFL's executive council some weeks ago called him on the carpet, and told him to clean up his union, or be ousted.

As Ryan talked with reporters today, he appeared tired and nervous.

Before he entered Hogan's office, the husky Ryan said:

"I still don't know why I'm here. If it is an indictment, I don't like to be indicted at my stage of the game."

The grand jury investigation stemmed from testimony by Ryan before a State Crime Commission last January that he had added union funds to his own personal accounts.

Soldiers, Marines

held a realistic dress rehearsal for the exchange.

Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U. S. Eighth Army commander, headed an array of high officers who witnessed the drill five miles south of Panmunjom.

At the truce village earlier, the Communists handed over a further breakdown of nationalities of the 600 ailing POWs they said they would exchange.

The Reds said a group of 15 not previously identified would include prisoners from Turkey, Canada, Greece, the Netherlands, the Philippines, South Africa, Australia and Colombia.

The Reds previously announced the prisoners they would return included 450 South Koreans, 120 Americans and 20 British soldiers. The allies will return 5,800 sick and wounded — 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese.

Today's dress rehearsal included both the giving and the taking of prisoners. The first stage was an enactment of delivery of Red prisoners. The second was the receiving of allied POWS and moving them to Freedom Village near Munsan for medical treatment and processing.

If the Board contemplates any substantial capital improvements in the near future, we would suggest that same be financed by a bond issue as your Surplus Earnings are at present insufficient to meet such demands.

In this connection, it may be necessary to increase water rates to meet the additional interest charges that a new bond issue will require. In our opinion, this latter course will become necessary unless all contemplated construction projects are scrapped.

We shall be pleased to discuss this matter further and to furnish you with any additional information you may require.

Supervisors Will Meet Wednesday

A meeting of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors will be held Wednesday evening at the court house at 8 o'clock.

At that time the board is expected to take action on the proposition of whether the office of County Commissioner of Public Welfare shall be an elective or appointive office. 26 Plead Innocence

Nairobi, Kenya, April 13 (AP)—Pleas of innocence were entered today by 26 Mau Mau suspects charged with the murder of a Kikuyu woman, one of four wives of a village headman. Their trial is the first in a series stemming from the massacre of 120 pro-British Kikuyu tribesmen by adherents of Mau Mau at Lari last March 26. The massacre was the biggest single act of violence in the history of Mau Mau, the secret society trying to drive the white man out of this British colony in East Africa.

groggy. As Merlin Camp, secretary of the Waynoka Saddle Club which sponsors the annual event put it:

"How would you feel after a good, long sleep? Like pretty much of a deadhead!"

So the hunters stalk the dens with their little forked sticks — snake-bite serum and suction cups standard equipment with every group—and catch the reptiles near the head, pinning them. The snakes are not injured, because hunt officials will pay only for the live variety—50 cents a pound.

The Waynoka group then sells the snakes for the same prices to Arthur Jones, professional handler from Slidell, La., who resells them to zoos and anti-venom plants. A few end up butchered and canned, considered rare delicacies in the "caviar set."

Camp admitted frankly his digestion and rattlesnake steak didn't get along.

"It wouldn't be bad if you didn't know what you were eating," he confided. "Taste's like shrimp. But I guess I'm mentally allergic to them."

The total snake take yesterday was expected to weigh close to 1,500 pounds.

No one was bitten on the hunt —no one has been bitten for the seven years of hunts at Waynoka.

Hunters usually bring back the rattlers in little boxes, but one hard-skinned wrangler brought in a few wrapped in the sleeves of his shirt.

"Take the snakes," he told amazed officials, "but give me back my shirt. It's my last one and I can't afford to buy a new one.

Then there was the woman who tried to open a new bank account because her old one had no more money in it.

Henrotte Returns To Maverick Home

Woodstock, April 13 — "We think that the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra is going to be one of the finest in the country," said Pierre Henrotte, assistant conductor of the orchestra, who returned to his home in the Maverick recently after completing his 10th season with the organization. This winter marked the first season with the celebrated Alexander Hilsberg as conductor of the New Orleans Symphony. Formerly associate conductor with Eugene Ormandy, of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Hilsberg, according to Henrotte, has lifted the New Orleans orchestra to new levels of achievement. In view of this winter's results, Henrotte reported jubilantly that Hilsberg had signed a contract with the organization for three years.

It has been an exciting winter in many respects for Henrotte who not only shares a large burden of the schedule for the symphony orchestra, but has assumed several projects of his own. Well-known in Woodstock since he became a summer resident of the Maverick in 1913, he is every Sunday afternoon in summer, the spokesman during the intermission time for the Maverick concerts, and as a musician he has been heard there himself many times. In New Orleans, he is also conductor and director for the NORD Neighborhood Concerts, which presented a series of three concerts this past winter.

Concerts Expand

This winter, under Henrotte's direction, the NORD concerts expanded into opera and immediately won enthusiastic comment from the New Orlean music critics. Last year he had presented a group of young New Orleans vocalists in light operetta songs. Encouraged by the quality of their voices this season he launched an experiment and scheduled operatic arias. His past 15 years experience as concert master for the Metropolitan Opera in New York provided the necessary background for the ambitious step.

Henrotte has not only seen the New Orleans symphony grow over a period of eight years under the former conductor Massimo Freccia, an Italian who brought the symphony up from an amateurish orchestra into the professional major orchestra it is today, but he has also participated in the growth of the Maverick.

He came here in 1913 upon the invitation of Horace Britt, his friend to spend the fall before returning to the Boston Opera with which he was then associated. Except for an occasional summer in Europe, Henrotte and his wife, Elvira, have been coming back to their home here ever since. There were few inhabitants in the Maverick then, Hervey White, Miss Elsa Kimball, Paul Kefer, first cellist of the Damrosch Symphony among them, and he remembers going to the village in a buggy drawn by a horse.

One factor remains the same each year, however, Henrotte always returns each spring with an unquenchably youthful spirit, a vigorous enthusiasm, and the Maverick comes alive for another summer of music.

Assembly Lines Closed

Detroit, April 13 (AP)—Assembly lines at 13 of the Ford Motor Company's 18 Ford, Mercury and Lincoln plants across the country were closed today because of a strike of 2,200 workers in a Monroe, Mich., parts plant. The closing idled 47,000 of Ford's 130,000 production workers, and a Ford spokesman said that "the total idle could easily reach 75,000 as more of our plants run out of parts." CIO United Auto Workers walked out at Monroe April 1, charging a speedup. Company officials denied the accusation. Negotiations have failed to break the deadlock, but will be resumed today. The Monroe plant makes wheels, coil springs and chrome parts.

Held for Hearing

Mildred Rye, 53, of Quarryville, was arrested by state police at Quarryville on a charge of public intoxication Sunday and held for a hearing before Justice Glenford Myers.

Oklahoma Wars

groggy. As Merlin Camp, secretary of the Waynoka Saddle Club which sponsors the annual event put it:

"How would you feel after a good, long sleep? Like pretty much of a deadhead!"

So the hunters stalk the dens with their little forked sticks — snake-bite serum and suction cups standard equipment with every group—and catch the reptiles near the head, pinning them. The snakes are not injured, because hunt officials will pay only for the live variety—50 cents a pound.

The Waynoka group then sells the snakes for the same prices to Arthur Jones, professional handler from Slidell, La., who resells them to zoos and anti-venom plants. A few end up butchered and canned, considered rare delicacies in the "caviar set."

Camp admitted frankly his digestion and rattlesnake steak didn't get along.

"It wouldn't be bad if you didn't know what you were eating," he confided. "Taste's like shrimp. But I guess I'm mentally allergic to them."

The total snake take yesterday was expected to weigh close to 1,500 pounds.

No one was bitten on the hunt —no one has been bitten for the seven years of hunts at Waynoka.

Hunters usually bring back the rattlers in little boxes, but one hard-skinned wrangler brought in a few wrapped in the sleeves of his shirt.

"Take the snakes," he told amazed officials, "but give me back my shirt. It's my last one and I can't afford to buy a new one.

Then there was the woman who tried to open a new bank account because her old one had no more money in it.

Buenos Aires, April 13 (AP)—Early returns from elections yesterday in two Argentine provinces gave the government Peronista party an expected sweeping majority over the small Communist party—the only opposition. In President Peron province — the former Chaco territory—the Peronista had tallied 19,863 votes compared to 678 for the Communists. Blank ballots totaled 1,985. In Eva Peron province—formerly Pampa territory—the Peronistas drew 10,673 votes, and 1,901 ballots were blank.

Henrotte Returns To Maverick Home

Woodstock, April 13 — "We think that the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra is going to be one of the finest in the country," said Pierre Henrotte, assistant conductor of the orchestra, who returned to his home in the Maverick recently after completing his 10th season with the organization. This winter marked the first season with the celebrated Alexander Hilsberg as conductor of the New Orleans Symphony. Formerly associate conductor with Eugene Ormandy, of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Hilsberg, according to Henrotte, has lifted the New Orleans orchestra to new levels of achievement. In view of this winter's results, Henrotte reported jubilantly that Hilsberg had signed a contract with the organization for three years.

It has been an exciting winter in many respects for Henrotte who not only shares a large burden of the schedule for the symphony orchestra, but has assumed several projects of his own. Well-known in Woodstock since he became a summer resident of the Maverick in 1913, he is every Sunday afternoon in summer, the spokesman during the intermission time for the Maverick concerts, and as a musician he has been heard there himself many times. In New Orleans, he is also conductor and director for the NORD Neighborhood Concerts, which presented a series of three concerts this past winter.

Concerts Expand

This winter, under Henrotte's direction, the NORD concerts expanded into opera and immediately won enthusiastic comment from the New Orlean music critics. Last year he had presented a group of young New Orleans vocalists in light operetta songs. Encouraged by the quality of their voices this season he launched an experiment and scheduled operatic arias. His past 15 years experience as concert master for the Metropolitan Opera in New York provided the necessary background for the ambitious step.

Henrotte has not only seen the New Orleans symphony grow over a period of eight years under the former conductor Massimo Freccia, an Italian who brought the symphony up from an amateurish orchestra into the professional major orchestra it is today, but he has also participated in the growth of the Maverick.

He came here in 1913 upon the invitation of Horace Britt, his friend to spend the fall before returning to the Boston Opera with which he was then associated. KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 13, 1953

AT FACE VALUE

Since the Red peace overtures were first made there have been many who came forward with interpretations of what the peace moves mean and what might result from the end of the fighting in Korea. President Eisenhower is more modest. Asked for his analysis of the situation he said that any comment he might make would be a guess and he refused to dignify his guesses by calling them analysis.

The President did say that the United States will accept the Red peace bids at face value until there is some reason to believe that they are not sincere. He added that he hoped quick exchange of wounded and sick prisoners might be arranged as evidence of Communist good faith.

There is no way to predict what the future will bring. The Reds may want peace in order to settle unrest at home. China may be tired of pulling the Russian chestnuts out of the fire in Korea. The top Red strategists may believe that peace will give them time to build up strength for a new battle somewhere else.

Whatever the reasons behind the moves, peace would work to the advantage of the West, perhaps more than it would for the Communists. We can produce faster than the Russians and their satellites. Time is definitely a factor on our side.

Nothing can be lost by a policy of meeting any peace offers with an attitude of reason and cooperation. If the Communists prove insincere we can find that out around a conference table. If they mean what they say we can put a quick end to the fighting.

LESSON FROM KOREA

As hopes for an end of the Korean fighting soar it seems like a good time for a sober examination of exactly what Korea has proved and what lessons the free world should learn from that sad and bloody conflict.

In some respects the United Nations is stronger because of the action it took in the Korean matter. For the first time in history an association of nations, banded together to preserve peace, took concerted action to halt an aggressor who threatened world peace. The precedent set by the UN move into Korea may deter future aggressors.

Cooperation by the nations who sent troops to halt the aggression in Korea was good considering that this was the first such attempt. But there was much to be desired. Trade with the aggressor countries in strategic materials was carried on by some of the very countries pledged to resist the aggressors. There were other instances when efforts could have been better coordinated.

One lesson that must be learned if the Korean war is not to be proved in vain is the need of the free nations to be prepared. Had the United Nations asserted itself clearly and demonstrated that it had the muscle to back up its stand, the Korean aggression might have been avoided.

There is no use crying over spilled milk or past mistakes. We must learn from the errors as well as from the successes. Men from many lands have given their lives in Korea for ideals which free men hold sacred. When the fighting ends it will be our task to prove that their sacrifice had meaning.

ENTER THE WOMEN

The poor male is getting crowded out more and more. Women are now getting the better jobs in politics, according to the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee. This shows that 31 women, practically evenly divided between the two parties, hold high state offices. Six are secretaries of state, four state treasurers, two state auditors, and three state superintendents of public instruction. Alabama elected a woman judge of the Court of Appeals.

It is getting to be so that it is hardly worth a man's time to go into politics, at least if he is after the spoils of office. Women are getting more and more of them, and once the voters get used to the idea of women in high office, they are bound to elect more.

'These Days'

METHODS OF LIBERATION

Nations at war and in difficulties with their neighbors use whatever tactics are available to them to accomplish their purposes. The spy is an ancient device, honored if uncaught, spurned as a bungler if disclosed. Nations have, from time to time, supported revolutionary movements in other countries, the United States, in the past, not being guiltless, particularly in Central and South America.

Now that we are going in for liberation, all sorts of committees and organizations are being established to liberate this and that. The theory is that they will send an "underground" into these various countries which will stimulate revolution. If an uprising occurs, the committee can say, "See what we've done!" If nothing happens, the less said about it the better.

Some of the liberation movements must, although figures are not available, receive support from public funds. I have not been able to discover how this is done. Maybe, some day I shall organize a committee to liberate somebody from something and I shall find out how this is processed. Meanwhile, the committees multiply and grow fruitful. It is like the committees that proliferate all over the government in Washington. There are so many of them that they might some day call a convention and get acquainted.

The liberation of a nation must eventually come from within. The people must want to be liberated from something obnoxious to them. If the so-called "liberation" comes from outside, it rarely takes root. It even gives the impression of a conquest.

The Russians recognized this as early as about 1920. They trained natives to do whatever job they wanted to have done in a country. Togliatti is an Italian, Thorez is French, Toledano is Mexican, etc., etc. They did not open an office in Paris to work in the United States, nor do they operate that way now. The auxiliary forces are natives, working within their own country.

And that brings up the subject of how to start a revolution to free the Russian people from the Communists. The assumption that a considerable part of the Russian population is anti-Kremlin cannot be borne out by any statistical data. The popularity of the present government is not measuarble by any gauge with which we are familiar.

We can measure popularity in this country by an election. The figures show that Eisenhower was, on Election Day, more popular than Stevenson. In 1954, we shall have a Congressional election which will give us another formal gauge of public opinion. On the side, some agencies take popularity polls which are more or less indicative of a trend, depending upon how skillfully the questions are asked and what the nature of the sample is.

There is nothing like that in Russia or Yugoslavia or China or in any of the Marxist countries. Therefore, popularity cannot be measured by any standards with which we are familiar. For all we know, the people who mourned Stalin meant it. They are accustomed to the life they know, anyone in Russia now 40 years of age having been four years old at the time of the revolution. Also, up to 1917, the Russians had always lived under an autocracy and were used to it. The various revolutionary movements were ineffectual until war broke the power of the Romanovs. The Russian people are getting the kind of autocracy which has been traditional in their long history.

I am not contending that there is no dissatisfaction in Russia or in any other countries. Dissatisfaction is the first evidence of thought among humans. But a wide gulf stands between a consciousness of wrong and a decision to do something about it. At any rate, it would seem at this moment to be a hopeless task to engineer a revolution within Russia from New York or Paris or some such place and it makes no sense to burden the American taxpayer with the cost of such an endeavor.

On the other hand, the history af all empires shows a pattern which seems to be universal, namely, that when the emergent force of empire lessens, the countries on the periphery fall away. Thus, if Russia is to be weakened by the process of "liberation," it is in Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and similar countries that work needs to be done. These countries have known freedom and they have not yet been fully absorbed in the Soviet system.

That Body of Yours

CROSS-EYE SHOULD BE TREATED EARLY

The fact that in some cases crossed eyes straightened out without treatment or operation, caused some physicians to advise parents to wait and see if nature would correct the defect.

In Health, the magazine published by the Health League of Canada, Dr. A. Lloyd Morgan, Director of Opthalmology, Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, states that, "Great advances have been made in the treatment of crossed eyes in the last few years. Not so many years ago, the advice to the parents of the crossed-eyed child was, 'Let it go for a while and if the condition does not improve by the time he is 10 or 12 years old, an operation can be done.' Unfortunately, by the time he is 10 to 12 years old, he has put in several years of life at school with the thoughtless cruelty of children making his life most miserable. Dr. Morgan states that by this time the turned eye was partially blind.

"Modern treatment is to start treating the crossed eye as soon as it is noticed. Most babies do not coordinate their eyes for the first few months but should be using both eyes together by the age of six months."

An easy way to determine if the baby's eyes are straight is to hold a lighted flashlight about two feet in front of his eyes. The child usually looks at the light and if the reflections are in the same position in the pupils of both eyes, the eyes are straight. If the bright spot is in the center of one pupil and to the outside of the other, they are not crossed.

Sometimes the eyes will cross when child is tired or ill and yet will be perfectly straight by time of examination.

It may come as a surprise to learn that the operation of straightening the eyes can be done anytime after one year of age and should be done before school age is reached, instead of waiting till age 9 or 10 and child has developed an inferority complex.

Dr. Morgan states further that if the eyes are straightened early in life and used together there is a much better chance of developing good vision in both eyes than if they are left until several years later.

Despite the fact that the operation is a delicate one, it does not affect the child very much. The patient is usually allowed to go home the second day following the operation and without a dressing on either eye.

While eye exercises are useful in some cases, both before and after operation, this is not always necessary. It has been found that the best time to correct crossed eye is before the child is three years of age because then he develops his own pattern of seeing without the use of eye exercises.

I am passing this information along to parents because there is nothing gained by waiting; even if the eyes later correct themselves, damage to the mind and emotions may occur if child goes through school life with crossed-eye.

The Same Problem Has Clouded Many Another

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA)—Plans for the proposed 1954 mid-term national convention of the Democratic party—first of its kind—have now been spelled out in more detail.

The estimated cost is $500,000. It is proposed to raise this money by contributions from the city in which the convention would be held, from the sale of television and radio rights, souvenir concessions, program advertising and the sale of spectator tickets.

One specific reservation it that expenditures for such a convention should not be subtracted from the funds ordinarily spent under the auspices of the congressional campaign committee.

The question of who would attend the pre-election convention presents several problems. In general, the idea is that the delegates would be apportioned as for a regular presidential nominating convention. They would be selected by state convention or election, according to the laws of the various states.

At the 1952 Democratic convention in Chicago there were 1650 delegates with 1230 votes—and another 1650 alternates. A mid-term convention in 1954 might be an even bigger show, however, because of the desire to give special recognition to all the 1954 candidates for national office, for governor and to the state party chairmen. Also admitted as delegates would be all Democratic governors, U. S. senators and representatives.

Committee Will Figure Out Details

National Democratic Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell will name a committee in the near future to work out all these details and determine whether the project is feasible.

Its principal purpose would be to write a Democratic platform for the 1954 elections. It would bring the 1950 platform adopted at Chicago up to date, to meet new issues.

Paul M. Butler, Democratic committeeman from Indiana, who presented the specific plan for a 1954 convention to the party's executive committee meeting in Washington, has offered a number of other reasons as to why it would be a good thing.

It would focus national attention on the minority party, says Mr. Butler. It would enable the party to speak with a single, clear voice on all issues.

A point in opposition to the plan is that this might also open up all the sectional fights that have marred past Democratic love feasts. The questions of civil rights and the loyalty oatn for convention delegates are still recalled with much bitterness, as tending to split the party.

Mr. Butler points out, however, that this would be an ideal means for scouting the major areas of disagreement within the party. This would help prepare the party for its 1946 presidential nominating convention. It would make the 1954 convention a vehicle of party harmony, Mr. Butler believes.

Other advantages he claims are that it would buck up Democratic voters, perfect a national organization, help the Democrats win control of Congress and so help all candidates for state and local offices.

Political Scientists Promoted the Idea

The background for this idea of a mid-term political party convention goes back to 1949, when the American Political Science Association decided to promote it. APSA had successfully put over congressional reform legislation in the LaFollette-Monroney Reorganization Act of 1946. The new project was designed to force American political parties to assume more responsibility in living up to their campaign promises.

A Committee on National Political Parties was formed under the chairmanship of Prof. Elmer E. Schattschneider of Connecticut Wesleyan. Serving with him were Professors Clarence A. Berdahl of Illinois, Merle Fainsod of Harvard, Kirk H. Porter of Iowa and others. Bert Gross, one of the drafters of the Full Employment Act of 1946, worked with them in Washington.

The committee drew up a preliminary report, outlining its plan. This was submitted to a series of some 20 dinner meetings with prominent citizens in various parts of the country. Under constant criticism, the plan was gradually refined.

It emerged in 1950 as a paper in the American Political Science Review. It was entitled, "Towards a More Responsible Two-Party System." The plan didn't win enough popular support to be adopted for the 1950 mid-term elections. But from then on it gained momentum.

President Truman and Democratic National Chairman Frank McKinney endorsed the idea early in 1952. The Democratic platform of 1952 contained a plank calling for a 1954 convention. That sold it.

Sir Roger Makins Aims at Explaining British Policy in Far East to American Public

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 13—It is an open secret here that relations between the United States and Great Britain are not as good as they ought to be and that differences on Far Eastern policy are at the root of the difficulty. So it is an important step when the British ambassador to the United States, acting undoubtedly under instructions from the British Foreign Office, makes a speech endeavoring to inform American public opinion on the British view. Some of his statements are most surprising and will no doubt come in for critical analysis here if only to straighten out the record.

One does not have to be long in this country," says Sir Roger Makins, the new British ambassador, "to realize the depth of feeling which exists on certain aspects of British policy in the Far East but which, in our view, are essentially secondary to the main issues. I refer, of course, to British recognition of Communist China and to British trade policy in regard to China.

"It is a fact that the British government recognized the Communist government of China in Peking in January 1950 before there was any aggression in Korea. But, in any case, for us recognition does not imply approval. We recognized only the indisputable fact that the government in Peking was exercising effective control of the mainland of China.

"It has long been established that the doctrine of recognition of another government does not signify approval of the policies of that government, and it is only recently that the idea has grown up that a moral issue is involved. No one supposed that the recognition of the Soviet government by the United States government or my own government implies that the U. S. government approves of Soviet communism."

But what are the facts as diplomatic history reveals them? Normally, as changes in governmental structure occur where a dominant faction has achieved control of the territory of a country, recognition is automatically extended and of course no approval of any new regime is intended. But there have been many cases in which not only a "moral issue" but international legal issues are involved. One of these relates to the capacity of a government seeking recognition to discharge its obligations internationally as, for example, in the protection afforded nationals of other countries and in the behavior of agents of that government on foreign soil.

Many Americans—and perhaps some of the experts in the British Foreign Office who help to draft memoranda for ambassadorial speeches—have doubtless forgotten that the United States from 1917 to 1933 refused to give diplomatic recognition to the Soviet government and finally did so under the Roosevelt administration only by a formal agreement which definitely set forth certain pledges by the Russian government not to allow her citizens to engage in subversive activities inside the United States—pledges that have been flagrantly violated since and warrant the movement in Congress recently begun which demands that recognition now be withdrawn because of a breach of faith.

Nobody can deny that during all the 17 years when the United States withheld diplomatic recognition the Communist government was in undisputed possession of all the territory of Soviet Russia. So this is by no means the only consideration in according recognition.

It will be recalled also that the Chinese Communist government has mistreated foreigners ever since its accession to military power. The story of the ordeals of British citizens and American consular representatives is well known.

But what rankles in informed quarters in America is the impression that Great Britain, a working partner of the United States in world affairs, didn't play ball with Washington and despite representations about delay from our State Department went ahead on her own in January 1950 with the diplomatic recognition of the Communists in China. Now there may be an unpublished chapter which in fairness to Britain ought to be clarified. There have been reports that the British Foreign Office when discussing the subject of recognizing Communist China prior to January 1950 did get the definite idea from our State Department that Secretary Acheson planned soon thereafter to recognize Communist China anyway and was thwarted in that plan by the furore which arose after his speech, also in January 1950, at the National Press Club in which he practically wrote off Korea and was lukewarm about Formosa. If the British acted with American consent or acquiescence, then the blame cannot be placed on London. If they didn't, the Foreign Office blundered.

As for British trade with the Communists, the British ambassador minimizes it with this rather equivocal statement that since June 1950: "No arms or munitions of war have ever been sold to the Chinese Communists from any British territory."

The question is what are "munitions" of war and what is "British territory." Ceylon is an independent member of the British Commonwealth and now supplies a huge amount of rubber to help make tires for military vehicles such as trucks which carry shells to kill American boys in Korea. Also the ambassador must know that what is exported to Russia from "the sources controlled by the United Kingdom" helps to make the munitions that are supplied by Soviet Russia to the Chinese Communists — and Russia has now publicly admitted giving that help.

Only last Saturday, a London press dispatch transmitted an announcement by the international rubber study group stating that imports of natural rubber by Soviet Russia were 17,500 tons and imports by Communist China were 11,500 tons in the first two months of this year. On a yearly basis this means about 18,000 tons of natural rubber for the Communists — plenty with which to meet the necessities of the Far Eastern war and the preparations of the Red army for European adventures. This is equal to 40 per cent of all the natural rubber consumed in the United States last year. We spend billions to train and equip a NATO army—but Soviet Russia gets war materials just the same.

Kremlin May Be Coming To Aid of American Taxpayer

By SAM DAWSON

New York, April 9 (AP) — The cooing Kremlin may be coming to the aid of the American taxpayer.

That, at least, is the wishful-thinking in some quarters in Wall Street. They reason that Moscow's peace overtures are already beginning to show signs of lowering U. S. government spending plans. If spending drops, taxes could be cut. And public demand likely would force a tax cut.

Signs of the change as cited by these observers include:

1. The U. S. Treasury says it will need to raise only two billion more dollars to keep its cash balance on June 30 at its present level of six billion dollars. Wall Street had figured prior to the Russian peace offensive that U. S. government defense spending plans would call for a larger program of treasury financing.

2. Tool manufacturers believe another stretch-out in the defense program may be in the works. They report renewed stretch-outs or cancellations of some orders connected with the defense program.

The air force is cancelling orders for 100 million dollars worth of J-47 jet engines—but giving as the official reason that the engines have proved more efficient than expected and therefore they can be operated twice as long between overhauls as first thought possible.

A number of manufacturers of other defense goods are predicting cancellations of orders may reach as high as 20 per cent, if peace comes. Still others are expecting a further stretch-out of delivery times on orders.

All of this would cut back the amount the government will be spending in the coming fiscal year. Hence the hope for tax cuts.

A third factor cited is the evident boost the peace talk is giving to the economy drive in Congress.

Wishful Thinking

Wall Streeters admit that much of their hope is based on wishful thinking. But they were quick to fasten onto the U. S. Treasury's refinancing plans as a sign less spending is in prospect.

Most of them had expected that when the treasury announced its long-term bond issue it would go after more than the billion dollars it will seek to raise next Monday.

And the fact that it will seek another billion dollars through more 91-day bills, its shortest-term security, was taken to mean that the treasury feels it won't be too badly pressed for cash in the second half of the year.

The new treasury policy has been to turn to more long-term bonds and away from the short-term bills which this administration disparages as inflationary. Wall Street feels that the treasury now thinks it won't need money badly enough to have to offer more long-term higher-interest bonds at this time.

The importance of defense spending can be over-rated, either as a bulwark of present prosperity or as depressant if cut back. But it does play a large part.

Before the Korean war started, U. S. Treasury spending for defense and foreign aid was running at a rate of around 18 billion dollars a year. It is up to 55 billion dollars a year now. That is about 15 per cent of all the goods and services produced in the United States.

That increase in spending brought a heavy additional tax load upon individuals and corporations alike. And it brought along the excess profits tax which business particularly dislikes. EPT is due to die in June, but until the Russian peace moves, the prospect was that it would be given a new lease on life.

Now Wall Street is hoping again that tax relief for business and for individuals may once more be a gleaming light on the horizon.

AT FACE VALUE

Since the Red peace overtures were first made there have been many who came forward with interpretations of what the peace moves mean and what might result from the end of the fighting in Korea. President Eisenhower is more modest. Asked for his analysis of the situation he said that any comment he might make would be a guess and he refused to dignify his guesses by calling them analysis.

The President did say that the United States will accept the Red peace bids at face value until there is some reason to believe that they are not sincere. He added that he hoped quick exchange of wounded and sick prisoners might be arranged as evidence of Communist good faith.

There is no way to predict what the future will bring. The Reds may want peace in order to settle unrest at home. China may be tired of pulling the Russian chestnuts out of the fire in Korea. The top Red strategists may believe that peace will give them time to build up strength for a new battle somewhere else.

Whatever the reasons behind the moves, peace would work to the advantage of the West, perhaps more than it would for the Communists. We can produce faster than the Russians and their satellites. Time is definitely a factor on our side.

Nothing can be lost by a policy of meeting any peace offers with an attitude of reason and cooperation. If the Communists prove insincere we can find that out around a conference table. If they mean what they say we can put a quick end to the fighting.

LESSON FROM KOREA

As hopes for an end of the Korean fighting soar it seems like a good time for a sober examination of exactly what Korea has proved and what lessons the free world should learn from that sad and bloody conflict.

In some respects the United Nations is stronger because of the action it took in the Korean matter. For the first time in history an association of nations, banded together to preserve peace, took concerted action to halt an aggressor who threatened world peace. The precedent set by the UN move into Korea may deter future aggressors.

Cooperation by the nations who sent troops to halt the aggression in Korea was good considering that this was the first such attempt. But there was much to be desired. Trade with the aggressor countries in strategic materials was carried on by some of the very countries pledged to resist the aggressors. There were other instances when efforts could have been better coordinated.

One lesson that must be learned if the Korean war is not to be proved in vain is the need of the free nations to be prepared. Had the United Nations asserted itself clearly and demonstrated that it had the muscle to back up its stand, the Korean aggression might have been avoided.

There is no use crying over spilled milk or past mistakes. We must learn from the errors as well as from the successes. Men from many lands have given their lives in Korea for ideals which free men hold sacred. When the fighting ends it will be our task to prove that their sacrifice had meaning.

ENTER THE WOMEN

The poor male is getting crowded out more and more. Women are now getting the better jobs in politics, according to the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee. This shows that 31 women, practically evenly divided between the two parties, hold high state offices. Six are secretaries of state, four state treasurers, two state auditors, and three state superintendents of public instruction. Alabama elected a woman judge of the Court of Appeals.

It is getting to be so that it is hardly worth a man's time to go into politics, at least if he is after the spoils of office. Women are getting more and more of them, and once the voters get used to the idea of women in high office, they are bound to elect more.

'These Days'

METHODS OF LIBERATION

Nations at war and in difficulties with their neighbors use whatever tactics are available to them to accomplish their purposes. The spy is an ancient device, honored if uncaught, spurned as a bungler if disclosed. Nations have, from time to time, supported revolutionary movements in other countries, the United States, in the past, not being guiltless, particularly in Central and South America.

Now that we are going in for liberation, all sorts of committees and organizations are being established to liberate this and that. The theory is that they will send an "underground" into these various countries which will stimulate revolution. If an uprising occurs, the committee can say, "See what we've done!" If nothing happens, the less said about it the better.

Some of the liberation movements must, although figures are not available, receive support from public funds. I have not been able to discover how this is done. Maybe, some day I shall organize a committee to liberate somebody from something and I shall find out how this is processed. Meanwhile, the committees multiply and grow fruitful. It is like the committees that proliferate all over the government in Washington. There are so many of them that they might some day call a convention and get acquainted.

The liberation of a nation must eventually come from within. The people must want to be liberated from something obnoxious to them. If the so-called "liberation" comes from outside, it rarely takes root. It even gives the impression of a conquest.

The Russians recognized this as early as about 1920. They trained natives to do whatever job they wanted to have done in a country. Togliatti is an Italian, Thorez is French, Toledano is Mexican, etc., etc. They did not open an office in Paris to work in the United States, nor do they operate that way now. The auxiliary forces are natives, working within their own country.

And that brings up the subject of how to start a revolution to free the Russian people from the Communists. The assumption that a considerable part of the Russian population is anti-Kremlin cannot be borne out by any statistical data. The popularity of the present government is not measuarble by any gauge with which we are familiar.

We can measure popularity in this country by an election. The figures show that Eisenhower was, on Election Day, more popular than Stevenson. In 1954, we shall have a Congressional election which will give us another formal gauge of public opinion. On the side, some agencies take popularity polls which are more or less indicative of a trend, depending upon how skillfully the questions are asked and what the nature of the sample is.

There is nothing like that in Russia or Yugoslavia or China or in any of the Marxist countries. Therefore, popularity cannot be measured by any standards with which we are familiar. For all we know, the people who mourned Stalin meant it. They are accustomed to the life they know, anyone in Russia now 40 years of age having been four years old at the time of the revolution. Also, up to 1917, the Russians had always lived under an autocracy and were used to it. The various revolutionary movements were ineffectual until war broke the power of the Romanovs. The Russian people are getting the kind of autocracy which has been traditional in their long history.

I am not contending that there is no dissatisfaction in Russia or in any other countries. Dissatisfaction is the first evidence of thought among humans. But a wide gulf stands between a consciousness of wrong and a decision to do something about it. At any rate, it would seem at this moment to be a hopeless task to engineer a revolution within Russia from New York or Paris or some such place and it makes no sense to burden the American taxpayer with the cost of such an endeavor.

On the other hand, the history af all empires shows a pattern which seems to be universal, namely, that when the emergent force of empire lessens, the countries on the periphery fall away. Thus, if Russia is to be weakened by the process of "liberation," it is in Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and similar countries that work needs to be done. These countries have known freedom and they have not yet been fully absorbed in the Soviet system.

That Body of Yours

CROSS-EYE SHOULD BE TREATED EARLY

The fact that in some cases crossed eyes straightened out without treatment or operation, caused some physicians to advise parents to wait and see if nature would correct the defect.

In Health, the magazine published by the Health League of Canada, Dr. A. Lloyd Morgan, Director of Opthalmology, Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, states that, "Great advances have been made in the treatment of crossed eyes in the last few years. Not so many years ago, the advice to the parents of the crossed-eyed child was, 'Let it go for a while and if the condition does not improve by the time he is 10 or 12 years old, an operation can be done.' Unfortunately, by the time he is 10 to 12 years old, he has put in several years of life at school with the thoughtless cruelty of children making his life most miserable. Dr. Morgan states that by this time the turned eye was partially blind.

"Modern treatment is to start treating the crossed eye as soon as it is noticed. Most babies do not coordinate their eyes for the first few months but should be using both eyes together by the age of six months."

An easy way to determine if the baby's eyes are straight is to hold a lighted flashlight about two feet in front of his eyes. The child usually looks at the light and if the reflections are in the same position in the pupils of both eyes, the eyes are straight. If the bright spot is in the center of one pupil and to the outside of the other, they are not crossed.

Sometimes the eyes will cross when child is tired or ill and yet will be perfectly straight by time of examination.

It may come as a surprise to learn that the operation of straightening the eyes can be done anytime after one year of age and should be done before school age is reached, instead of waiting till age 9 or 10 and child has developed an inferority complex.

Dr. Morgan states further that if the eyes are straightened early in life and used together there is a much better chance of developing good vision in both eyes than if they are left until several years later.

Despite the fact that the operation is a delicate one, it does not affect the child very much. The patient is usually allowed to go home the second day following the operation and without a dressing on either eye.

While eye exercises are useful in some cases, both before and after operation, this is not always necessary. It has been found that the best time to correct crossed eye is before the child is three years of age because then he develops his own pattern of seeing without the use of eye exercises.

I am passing this information along to parents because there is nothing gained by waiting; even if the eyes later correct themselves, damage to the mind and emotions may occur if child goes through school life with crossed-eye.

The Same Problem Has Clouded Many Another

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA)—Plans for the proposed 1954 mid-term national convention of the Democratic party—first of its kind—have now been spelled out in more detail.

The estimated cost is $500,000. It is proposed to raise this money by contributions from the city in which the convention would be held, from the sale of television and radio rights, souvenir concessions, program advertising and the sale of spectator tickets.

One specific reservation it that expenditures for such a convention should not be subtracted from the funds ordinarily spent under the auspices of the congressional campaign committee.

The question of who would attend the pre-election convention presents several problems. In general, the idea is that the delegates would be apportioned as for a regular presidential nominating convention. They would be selected by state convention or election, according to the laws of the various states.

At the 1952 Democratic convention in Chicago there were 1650 delegates with 1230 votes—and another 1650 alternates. A mid-term convention in 1954 might be an even bigger show, however, because of the desire to give special recognition to all the 1954 candidates for national office, for governor and to the state party chairmen. Also admitted as delegates would be all Democratic governors, U. S. senators and representatives.

Committee Will Figure Out Details

National Democratic Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell will name a committee in the near future to work out all these details and determine whether the project is feasible.

Its principal purpose would be to write a Democratic platform for the 1954 elections. It would bring the 1950 platform adopted at Chicago up to date, to meet new issues.

Paul M. Butler, Democratic committeeman from Indiana, who presented the specific plan for a 1954 convention to the party's executive committee meeting in Washington, has offered a number of other reasons as to why it would be a good thing.

It would focus national attention on the minority party, says Mr. Butler. It would enable the party to speak with a single, clear voice on all issues.

A point in opposition to the plan is that this might also open up all the sectional fights that have marred past Democratic love feasts. The questions of civil rights and the loyalty oath for convention delegates are still recalled with much bitterness, as tending to split the party.

Mr. Butler points out, however, that this would be an ideal means for scouting the major areas of disagreement within the party. This would help prepare the party for its 1946 presidential nominating convention. It would make the 1954 convention a vehicle of party harmony, Mr. Butler believes.

Other advantages he claims are that it would buck up Democratic voters, perfect a national organization, help the Democrats win control of Congress and so help all candidates for state and local offices.

Political Scientists Promoted the Idea

The background for this idea of a mid-term political party convention goes back to 1949, when the American Political Science Association decided to promote it. APSA had successfully put over congressional reform legislation in the LaFollette-Monroney Reorganization Act of 1946. The new project was designed to force American political parties to assume more responsibility in living up to their campaign promises.

A Committee on National Political Parties was formed under the chairmanship of Prof. Elmer E. Schattschneider of Connecticut Wesleyan. Serving with him were Professors Clarence A. The committee drew up a preliminary report, outlining its plan. This was submitted to a series of some 20 dinner meetings with prominent citizens in various parts of the country. Under constant criticism, the plan was gradually refined.

It emerged in 1950 as a paper in the American Political Science Review. It was entitled, "Towards a More Responsible Two-Party System." The plan didn't win enough popular support to be adopted for the 1950 mid-term elections. But from then on it gained momentum.

President Truman and Democratic National Chairman Frank McKinney endorsed the idea early in 1952. The Democratic platform of 1952 contained a plank calling for a 1954 convention. That sold it.

Sir Roger Makins Aims at Explaining British Policy in Far East to American Public

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 13—It is an open secret here that relations between the United States and Great Britain are not as good as they ought to be and that differences on Far Eastern policy are at the root of the difficulty. So it is an important step when the British ambassador to the United States, acting undoubtedly under instructions from the British Foreign Office, makes a speech endeavoring to inform American public opinion on the British view. Some of his statements are most surprising and will no doubt come in for critical analysis here if only to straighten out the record.

One does not have to be long in this country," says Sir Roger Makins, the new British ambassador, "to realize the depth of feeling which exists on certain aspects of British policy in the Far East but which, in our view, are essentially secondary to the main issues. I refer, of course, to British recognition of Communist China and to British trade policy in regard to China.

"It is a fact that the British government recognized the Communist government of China in Peking in January 1950 before there was any aggression in Korea. But, in any case, for us recognition does not imply approval. We recognized only the indisputable fact that the government in Peking was exercising effective control of the mainland of China.

"It has long been established that the doctrine of recognition of another government does not signify approval of the policies of that government, and it is only recently that the idea has grown up that a moral issue is involved. No one supposed that the recognition of the Soviet government by the United States government or my own government implies that the U. S. government approves of Soviet communism."

But what are the facts as diplomatic history reveals them? Normally, as changes in governmental structure occur where a dominant faction has achieved control of the territory of a country, recognition is automatically extended and of course no approval of any new regime is intended. But there have been many cases in which not only a "moral issue" but international legal issues are involved. One of these relates to the capacity of a government seeking recognition to discharge its obligations internationally as, for example, in the protection afforded nationals of other countries and in the behavior of agents of that government on foreign soil.

Many Americans—and perhaps some of the experts in the British Foreign Office who help to draft memoranda for ambassadorial speeches—have doubtless forgotten that the United States from 1917 to 1933 refused to give diplomatic recognition to the Soviet government and finally did so under the Roosevelt administration only by a formal agreement which definitely set forth certain pledges by the Russian government not to allow her citizens to engage in subversive activities inside the United States—pledges that have been flagrantly violated since and warrant the movement in Congress recently begun which demands that recognition now be withdrawn because of a breach of faith.

Nobody can deny that during all the 17 years when the United States withheld diplomatic recognition the Communist government was in undisputed possession of all the territory of Soviet Russia. So this is by no means the only consideration in according recognition.

It will be recalled also that the Chinese Communist government has mistreated foreigners ever since its accession to military power. The story of the ordeals of British citizens and American consular representatives is well known.

But what rankles in informed quarters in America is the impression that Great Britain, a working partner of the United States in world affairs, didn't play ball with Washington and despite representations about delay from our State Department went ahead on her own in January 1950 with the diplomatic recognition of the Communists in China. Now there may be an unpublished chapter which in fairness to Britain ought to be clarified. There have been reports that the British Foreign Office when discussing the subject of recognizing Communist China prior to January 1950 did get the definite idea from our State Department that Secretary Acheson planned soon thereafter to recognize Communist China anyway and was thwarted in that plan by the furore which arose after his speech, also in January 1950, at the National Press Club in which he practically wrote off Korea and was lukewarm about Formosa. If the British acted with American consent or acquiescence, then the blame cannot be placed on London. If they didn't, the Foreign Office blundered.

As for British trade with the Communists, the British ambassador minimizes it with this rather equivocal statement that since June 1950: "No arms or munitions of war have ever been sold to the Chinese Communists from any British territory."

The question is what are "munitions" of war and what is "British territory." Ceylon is an independent member of the British Commonwealth and now supplies a huge amount of rubber to help make tires for military vehicles such as trucks which carry shells to kill American boys in Korea. Also the ambassador must know that what is exported to Russia from "the sources controlled by the United Kingdom" helps to make the munitions that are supplied by Soviet Russia to the Chinese Communists — and Russia has now publicly admitted giving that help.

Only last Saturday, a London press dispatch transmitted an announcement by the international rubber study group stating that imports of natural rubber by Soviet Russia were 17,500 tons and imports by Communist China were 11,500 tons in the first two months of this year. On a yearly basis this means about 18,000 tons of natural rubber for the Communists — plenty with which to meet the necessities of the Far Eastern war and the preparations of the Red army for European adventures. This is equal to 40 per cent of all the natural rubber consumed in the United States last year. We spend billions to train and equip a NATO army—but Soviet Russia gets war materials just the same.

Kremlin May Be Coming To Aid of American Taxpayer

By SAM DAWSON

New York, April 9 (AP) — The cooing Kremlin may be coming to the aid of the American taxpayer.

That, at least, is the wishful-thinking in some quarters in Wall Street. They reason that Moscow's peace overtures are already beginning to show signs of lowering U. S. government spending plans. If spending drops, taxes could be cut. And public demand likely would force a tax cut.

Signs of the change as cited by these observers include:

1. The U. S. Treasury says it will need to raise only two billion more dollars to keep its cash balance on June 30 at its present level of six billion dollars. Wall Street had figured prior to the Russian peace offensive that U. S. government defense spending plans would call for a larger program of treasury financing.

2. Tool manufacturers believe another stretch-out in the defense program may be in the works. They report renewed stretch-outs or cancellations of some orders connected with the defense program.

The air force is cancelling orders for 100 million dollars worth of J-47 jet engines—but giving as the official reason that the engines have proved more efficient than expected and therefore they can be operated twice as long between overhauls as first thought possible.

A number of manufacturers of other defense goods are predicting cancellations of orders may reach as high as 20 per cent, if peace comes. Still others are expecting a further stretch-out of delivery times on orders.

All of this would cut back the amount the government will be spending in the coming fiscal year. Hence the hope for tax cuts.

A third factor cited is the evident boost the peace talk is giving to the economy drive in Congress.

Wishful Thinking

Wall Streeters admit that much of their hope is based on wishful thinking. But they were quick to fasten onto the U. S. Treasury's refinancing plans as a sign less spending is in prospect.

Most of them had expected that when the treasury announced its long-term bond issue it would go after more than the billion dollars it will seek to raise next Monday.

And the fact that it will seek another billion dollars through more 91-day bills, its shortest-term security, was taken to mean that the treasury feels it won't be too badly pressed for cash in the second half of the year.

The new treasury policy has been to turn to more long-term bonds and away from the short-term bills which this administration disparages as inflationary. Wall Street feels that the treasury now thinks it won't need money badly enough to have to offer more long-term higher-interest bonds at this time.

The importance of defense spending can be over-rated, either as a bulwark of present prosperity or as depressant if cut back. But it does play a large part.

Before the Korean war started, U. S. Treasury spending for defense and foreign aid was running at a rate of around 18 billion dollars a year. It is up to 55 billion dollars a year now. That is about 15 per cent of all the goods and services produced in the United States.

That increase in spending brought a heavy additional tax load upon individuals and corporations alike. And it brought along the excess profits tax which business particularly dislikes. EPT is due to die in June, but until the Russian peace moves, the prospect was that it would be given a new lease on life.

Now Wall Street is hoping again that tax relief for business and for individuals may once more be a gleaming light on the horizon.

Warning Given on POW View of Communism

Washington, April 13 (AP)—If some American soldiers return from prisoner of war camps talking like converts to communism, says the Defense Department, they probably are the victims of a "propaganda web."

Some 120 Americans are among the sick and wounded war prisoners in Korea scheduled to be exchanged a week from today.

Apparently looking toward that, the Pentagon got out a "fact sheet" last night. It described Red treatment to prisoners — sometimes harsh, sometimes soft—as one of the Communists' propaganda techniques.

Some prisoners may have been trapped by distorted information and others may have pretended cooperation as an alternative to death or torture, the statement said.

May Be Silver Lining For Cherry Bud Queen

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Rain washed out the finale of Washington's annual cherry blossom festival yesterday, but there may yet be a silver lining for the queen.

A steady drizzle led officials to call off the water skiing pageant, windup of the five-day frolic. Thousands of tourists thereupon made an early beeline for bus, train and air depots.

"This place," said a reservations clerk at National Airport, "looks like a crowded dance floor."

Queen Janet Kaye Bailey of Akron, O., who was crowned Saturday by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, had trouble getting her flowing coronation gown into a suitcase. Said the 18-year-old beauty:

"I think I'll get married in it."

SPRING STYLE NOTE

The polka dot complexion is widely seen among the younger set at this season. Chicken pox is an infectious disease that spreads rapidly. By the age of 15, three out of every four children have had it. Fortunately, they rarely have to suffer through it more than once.

In spite of the discomfort, chicken pox is one of the mildest of childhood diseases. But the symptoms are somewhat like those of smallpox. Therefore, the doctor should be consulted at once if a child develops a rash of pink spots with a slight fever, headache, and loss of appetite.

The rash will usually appear first on the trunk, then the face, and in severe cases, may cover the whole body. The spots change to blisters which become crusted with scabs within three or four days. During this time constant itching makes the child extremely uncomfortable. It will take all mother's ingenuity to distract him from scratching and possibly infecting the eruptions.

To prevent infection, fingernails should be cut short, hands washed often, and clothes and bedding kept fresh and clean. Very young children may need mitts on their hands or stiff tubes extending over their elbows to restrain from scratching. The doctor may prescribe a soothing lotion. Scars of scratched eruptions will fade in time, but meanwhile they may be hard on the vanity of a teen-aged youngster.

The chicken pox virus is passed on through secretions from the mouth and nose and fluid from the blisters, usually from one day before until six days after the blisters appear. The disease breaks out two to three weeks after exposure. Health department rules generally allow children who have not had chicken pox to go to school for ten days after they have been exposed. They are then kept home from the 10th to the 21st day.

Jacoby on Canasta

Learn About Samba Sequence

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

As most players know, the game of Samba is just a way of playing Canasta with three packs instead of the customary two packs of cards. The name Samba was given to the game by my friend John R. Crawford, and he gave the same name (with a small first letter) to a sequence of seven cards. In other words, Samba is the game and samba is a seven-card sequence.

The reason I bring up this little bit of history is to point out that a sequence of seven cards is a canasta. It's a special kind of canasta, to be sure, and has a special name—but it's canasta just the same.

In order to meld out in the game of Samba you need two canastas. This is where many players are puzzled. They forget that a samba is a kind of canasta.

In other words, you can meld out in a game of Samba with two ordinary canastas, or with two sambas (sequence canastas), or with one of each. If you have occasional discussions on this point, please clip out this column and save it to settle arguments.

Q—In a game of Samba a player drew the discard pile and then wanted to take one card from the stock pile in addition. He claimed that he had the right to two draws, and that the discard pile was only half of his draw no matter how many cards happened to be in the discard pile. Is he right?

A—No. A player has the right, at his turn in a game of Samba, to draw either from the stock pile or from the discard pile—but never from both. It's true that you get two cards if you happen to draw from the stock pile, but that isn't the same as two draws.

Q—When we get to the end of the stock pile in a game of Samba, there is usually only one card left in the pile. Does that count as a regular draw? Is the player who picks up only one card entitled to make a discard?

A—It counts as a regular draw in every way. Unless that one card happens to be a red three (which unless there has been a mistake) the player is entitled to a discard just as he usually is.

A stock pile usually ends with only one card because the dealing out of four hands and of a trump card leaves the stock pile with an odd number of cards to begin with.

Each successive draw of two cards from the stock pile leaves an odd number of cards. This can be altered if one of the last two cards is a red three or if the first turnup card is a wild card and therefore has to be covered by a second turnup card.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

SPRING STYLE NOTE

The polka dot complexion is widely seen among the younger set at this season. Chicken pox is an infectious disease that spreads rapidly. By the age of 15, three out of every four children have had it. Fortunately, they rarely have to suffer through it more than once.

In spite of the discomfort, chicken pox is one of the mildest of childhood diseases. But the symptoms are somewhat like those of smallpox. Therefore, the doctor should be consulted at once if a child develops a rash of pink spots with a slight fever, headache, and loss of appetite.

The rash will usually appear first on the trunk, then the face, and in severe cases, may cover the whole body. The spots change to blisters which become crusted with scabs within three or four days. During this time constant itching makes the child extremely uncomfortable. It will take all mother's ingenuity to distract him from scratching and possibly infecting the eruptions.

To prevent infection, fingernails should be cut short, hands washed often, and clothes and bedding kept fresh and clean. Very young children may need mitts on their hands or stiff tubes extending over their elbows to restrain from scratching. The doctor may prescribe a soothing lotion. Scars of scratched eruptions will fade in time, but meanwhile they may be hard on the vanity of a teen-aged youngster.

The chicken pox virus is passed on through secretions from the mouth and nose and fluid from the blisters, usually from one day before until six days after the blisters appear. The disease breaks out two to three weeks after exposure. Health department rules generally allow children who have not had chicken pox to go to school for ten days after they have been exposed. They are then kept home from the 10th to the 21st day.

Jacoby on Canasta

Learn About Samba Sequence

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

As most players know, the game of Samba is just a way of playing Canasta with three packs instead of the customary two packs of cards. The name Samba was given to the game by my friend John R. Crawford, and he gave the same name (with a small first letter) to a sequence of seven cards. In other words, Samba is the game and samba is a seven-card sequence.

The reason I bring up this little bit of history is to point out that a sequence of seven cards is a canasta. It's a special kind of canasta, to be sure, and has a special name—but it's canasta just the same.

In order to meld out in the game of Samba you need two canastas. This is where many players are puzzled. They forget that a samba is a kind of canasta.

In other words, you can meld out in a game of Samba with two ordinary canastas, or with two sambas (sequence canastas), or with one of each. If you have occasional discussions on this point, please clip out this column and save it to settle arguments.

Q—In a game of Samba a player drew the discard pile and then wanted to take one card from the stock pile in addition. He claimed that he had the right to two draws, and that the discard pile was only half of his draw no matter how many cards happened to be in the discard pile. Is he right?

A—No. A player has the right, at his turn in a game of Samba, to draw either from the stock pile or from the discard pile—but never from both. It's true that you get two cards if you happen to draw from the stock pile, but that isn't the same as two draws.

Q—When we get to the end of the stock pile in a game of Samba, there is usually only one card left in the pile. Does that count as a regular draw? Is the player who picks up only one card entitled to make a discard?

A—It counts as a regular draw in every way. Unless that one card happens to be a red three (which unless there has been a mistake) the player is entitled to a discard just as he usually is.

A stock pile usually ends with only one card because the dealing out of four hands and of a trump card leaves the stock pile with an odd number of cards to begin with.

Each successive draw of two cards from the stock pile leaves an odd number of cards. This can be altered if one of the last two cards is a red three or if the first turnup card is a wild card and therefore has to be covered by a second turnup card.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Upholds Rights Of U. S. Fishermen

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior McKay said today that giving the states their coastal offshore lands out to their historical boundaries must not jeopardize coastal fishing regulation.

In a speech prepared for the National Fisheries Institute, McKay said:

"A large portion of our fishermen's catch of tuna, shrimp, halibut, salmon, ocean perch and groundfish is taken on the high seas off the coast of our neighboring countries to the north and south.

"The rights of our fishermen to continue in these high seas fisheries must not be jeopardized."

The secretary noted he had taken the position that "the national interest would be best served by giving the various states the coastal offshore land to the limits of the historical boundaries of each of them."

A bill to do this is being debated in the Senate now.

Commenting that he was appearing for the first time as secretary before a large group representing the fishing industry, McKay said:

Many Issues Involved

"I am fully aware that the fishing industry faces many issues which will require the best efforts of both industry and government in their settlement."

The need for new hydro-electric facilities in many areas cannot be ignored, he said, but he promised to see that wherever possible they are put where they will have the minimum effects upon fish.

The secretary said he hoped the government's exploratory fishing and other fact-finding investigations which "have paid off well" could be continued and perhaps expanded.

"The oceans which cover about three-fourths of the earth's surface," McKay said, "may someday become our last great food-producing frontier."

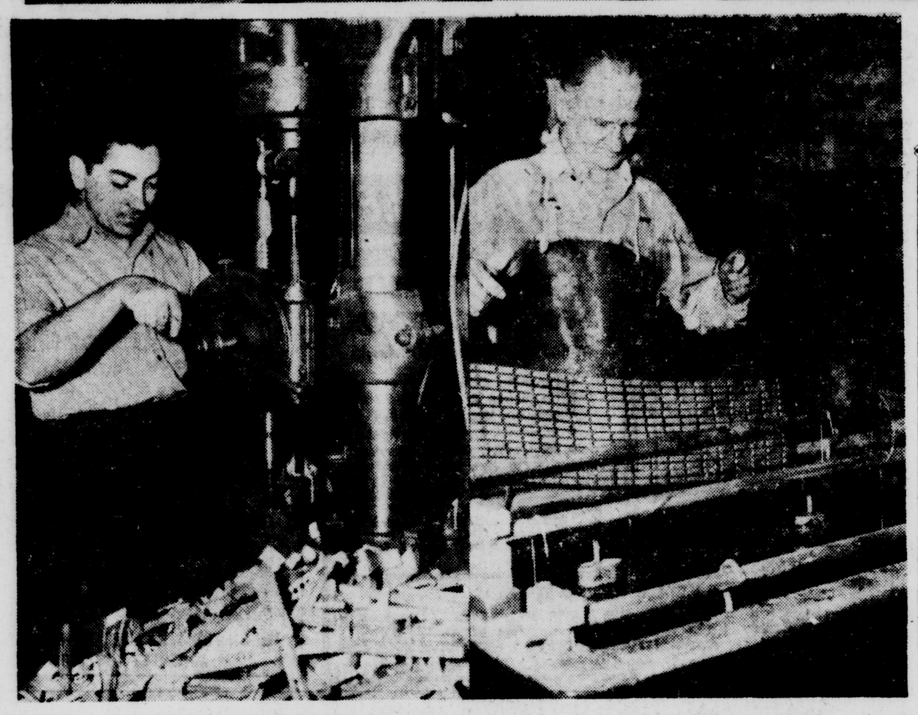
Local Piano Hardware Plant Shares Post-War Boom



Employes at the Charles Ramsey Corp., 15-19 Gage street, makers of piano hardware, are busily engaged in production of parts which find their way to piano manufacturers all over the world. Upper left, Walter Tylec operates a steel piano bar punch press; upper center, Roderick Binch feeds brass hinge through multiple punch press; upper right, Minas Minasian buffs piano pedals. Ramsey Firm Sends Piano Parts Throughout World

Piano hardware manufactured by the Charles Ramsey Corporation, 15-19 Gage street, serves the piano industry in many parts of the world, a visit to the plant last week disclosed.

According to Harry C. Kapreilian, secretary and general manager for most of the 44 years he has been associated with the plant, the hinges, pedals, trapwork, etc., which make up piano hardware, go to Europe, Canada and every part of the United States.

Kapreilian pointed out that the Ramsey Corp. was the only piano hardware manufacturer in the United States. He said there had been a number of such plants some years ago but they had gradually disappeared.

Shares in Boom

The local plant is sharing a post-war boom which has affected the entire piano industry, coast-to-coast, and for which a number of explanations have been advanced by officials of leading manufacturing concerns.

Some of these are: Good times in general, demand built in period of restricted production after outbreak of the Korean War, bumper crop of World War 2 babies now in the seven-to-14-year-old age group reaching the age for taking piano lessons, a general increase in interest in music, growing popularity of the low-priced spinet (a waist-high upright instrument), intensive advertisement to stir the interest of youngsters in playing the piano.

J. A. Stahl, plant superintendent, who has been associated with the local establishment for more than 30 years, pointed out to this reporter that the current March-April business had been the "best I ever knew." He explained that it slowed in the summer but picked up again in August and that the busiest season came from August to January. The plant has been working a six-day week since September 1.

Founded in 1895

The Ramsey Corp. was founded in New York in 1895 by Charles Ramsey and came to Kingston in 1909. Mrs. Elsie C. Rick is president and treasurer, Edward H. Rick, vice-president, Kapreilian, secretary and general manager, Harry C. Kapreilian, Jr., is assistant sales manager and also has charge of the shipping department.

According to a recent page one story in the Wall Street Journal, National Piano Manufacturing Association reports show shipments in January and February of this year was at the highest point in more than a quarter of a century.

B. F. Duvall, vice president and secretary of W. W. Kimball Co., Chicago, predicts a total production in 1953 of over 180,000 pianos, 5,000 above the 1950 output and the highest since 1927.

At Grand Haven, Mich., George H. Stapely, president of Everett Piano Co., reports the plant has been operating at full capacity since last September on a nine-hour day.

R. C. Rolfing, president of Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., of Chicago, says the company is having no trouble selling all the pianos it can make.

How Music Is Made

The article in the Wall Street Journal describes the making of music in a piano as follows: "A piano makes music when hammers of high-grade felt strike strings of varying thicknesses and lengths strung on a harp-like cast iron plate. These strings of high tensile strength are so taut they exert a pressure of 10,000 to 17,000 pounds on the plate. The strings are stretched across a wooden bridge glued to a spruce sounding board. When the strings vibrate the movement is transmitted to the sounding board by the bridge and the sounding board amplifies the vibrations into music.

City Cancer Drive Progress Pleasing, Baltz Announces

Results of the first week of house-to-house canvassing in the 1953 campaign of the American Cancer Society surpassed that of previous years, it was announced today by Chester Baltz, Jr., city chairman.

"We are very much pleased with the early returns from this year's Cancer Crusade, both in the house-to-house canvass and in the canvass by letter. Our citizens seem to realize that this is their own fight as well as ours and are supporting us to a greater extent than ever before."

Baltz said if no one had called at a particular home it was because the campaign was still young and many workers had not yet covered their territory. He pointed out that there was a shortage of volunteers but explained that a contribution could be mailed simply by addressing the envelope "Cancer" in care of the local postmaster.

Denies Kickbacks

Newark, N. J., April 13 (AP)—Mayor Ralph Villani denies wrongdoing in accepting campaign contributions from his employes. A grand jury presentment last week accused the mayor of Newark of violating a public trust by receiving money "extorted" from employes in return for promotions or pay increases. In a statement Saturday, the first since the presentment, Villani said employe contributions are "part and parcel on all levels * * *." He denied there were any kickbacks. All the money received was in contributions for welfare and political purposes, he said.

Atom Study Approved

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Two private companies have been authorized by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to find out how and when nuclear power can be put to peacetime use. Riot Dwindles to Shouts

Stillwater, Minn., April 13 (AP)—Officials at the Minnesota state prison maintained quiet watchfulness today as demonstrations by disgruntled convicts tapered off to a few shouts. More than 800 prisoners were held in their cells for the third day. This morning's breakfast marked the sixth meal they missed since the rebellion started Saturday morning. Most of them, however, had candy and fruit purchased at a commissary just before the outbreak.

Hormones Blamed For Breast Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

Denver, April 13 (AP) — Sex hormones working on women's breasts between ages 20 and 40 may start breast cancers appearing at 55 or 60, a physician said today.

This is a clue to a treatment of breast cancers with both female and male sex hormones, which has benefited a few women. It also is a long-range clue to prevention of human cancers.

The experiments were described to science reporters starting a two-week tour, organized by the American Cancer Society, of cancer research centers in Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, Tex., and New Orleans.

The hormone guilt is indicated in mouse experiments by Dr. Robert Huseby, University of Colorado School of Medicine.

Fault in Amounts

Specifically, he said, the fault seems to be in the amounts and inter-play of female and male sex hormones in the body. Female hormone stimulates the breast. Male hormone may protect the breast from too much female hormone. The balance of hormones may be out of kilter in women who later get breast cancer. Still other hormones may be involved.

Just what the mix-up in hormone pattern may be is still a mystery. If the normal balance can be learned, blood tests might make it possible to learn which women needed extra amounts of various hormones while young in order to prevent cancer later.

Clasped in Death

Canton, Conn., April 13 (AP)—A man and the young nephew he tried to save died in each other's arms in a fire early today, after the man previously had helped get the rest of the family to safety. Police said Russell Birstol, 49, discovered the fire in the two-story frame house of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wagner, and awakened them. They escaped through windows, and Bristol carried out their 13-year-old son, George. He then rushed back inside after 9-year-old Jerry Wagner. Their bodies were found near an upstairs window, their arms clasping each other.

Plans 'Great Crusade'

Manila, April 13 (AP)—Ramon Magsaysay, former defense secretary, today planned a "great crusade" to wrest the Philippines presidency from the man and the party he quit in a sharp break. Magsaysay accepted a landslide 705-49 nomination Sunday to run on the anti-administration Nacionalista ticket next November. The one-time scourge of Communist-led Huk outlaws probably will face President Elpidio Quirino, his former boss, who seems certain to be nominated again by the administration Liberty party next month. Magsaysay quit the Liberal party in disagreement with Quirino over how to rid the Philippines of the Huks.

Wounds Intruder After Daughter

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 13 (AP)—Dr. Laban Lacy Rice, 83-year-old lecturer and former university president, shot and seriously wounded a man who attempted to carry off his daughter in a week-end invasion of their home in suburban Gulfport.

Joe Ciani, 46, a carpenter, is in serious condition in a hospital from bullet wounds in the chest and shoulder but he is expected to recover.

Rice, who used a 50-year-old pistol to halt Ciani, also accidentally shot his daughter, Mrs. Katherine Shaw, 58, in one hand. She was treated for the wound and shock.

Sheriff Sid Saunders said Ciani had been interested romantically in Mrs. Shaw since she hired him for some carpentry work three years ago. Several months ago, police were called when Ciani went to the Gulfport home to press his attentions on Mrs. Shaw.

Saturday night he returned to the home, Saunders said, and when Rice ordered him to leave, Ciani picked up Mrs. Shaw, who weighs about 120 pounds, and ran out of the house with her. The shooting followed.

No Charges Filed

Rice, after being held overnight in jail, was released Sunday. No charges have been filed

Mrs. Shaw is the widow of Dr. James Shaw, a prominent St. Petersburg dentist who killed himself in a hotel room in Ocala in 1942 because of illness.

Police said Rice told them he was anxious to "get any legal technicalities out of the way" so he could leave for a scheduled lecture tour among northern colleges. He had planned to leave Tuesday.

Peace Justice Clyde Kissinger indicated that Rice would be allowed to go on the tour.

Rice is an international authority on relativity and astronomy and author of the book, "The Universe, Its Origin, Nature and Destiny."

Upholds Rights Of U. S. Fishermen

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior McKay said today that giving the states their coastal offshore lands out to their historical boundaries must not jeopardize coastal fishing regulation.

In a speech prepared for the National Fisheries Institute, McKay said:

"A large portion of our fishermen's catch of tuna, shrimp, halibut, salmon, ocean perch and groundfish is taken on the high seas off the coast of our neighboring countries to the north and south.

The secretary noted he had taken the position that "the national interest would be best served by giving the various states the coastal offshore land to the limits of the historical boundaries of each of them."

A bill to do this is being debated in the Senate now.

Commenting that he was appearing for the first time as secretary before a large group representing the fishing industry, McKay said:

Many Issues Involved

"I am fully aware that the fishing industry faces many issues which will require the best efforts of both industry and government in their settlement."

The need for new hydro-electric facilities in many areas cannot be ignored, he said, but he promised to see that wherever possible they are put where they will have the minimum effects upon fish.

The secretary said he hoped the government's exploratory fishing and other fact-finding investigations which "have paid off well" could be continued and perhaps expanded.

"The oceans which cover about three-fourths of the earth's surface," McKay said, "may someday become our last great food-producing frontier."

Local Piano Hardware Plant Shares Post-War Boom

Ramsey Firm Sends Piano Parts Throughout World

Piano hardware manufactured by the Charles Ramsey Corporation, 15-19 Gage street, serves the piano industry in many parts of the world, a visit to the plant last week disclosed.

According to Harry C. Kapreilian, secretary and general manager for most of the 44 years he has been associated with the plant, the hinges, pedals, trapwork, etc., which make up piano hardware, go to Europe, Canada and every part of the United States.

Kapreilian pointed out that the Ramsey Corp. was the only piano hardware manufacturer in the United States. He said there had been a number of such plants some years ago but they had gradually disappeared.

Shares in Boom

The local plant is sharing a post-war boom which has affected the entire piano industry, coast-to-coast, and for which a number of explanations have been advanced by officials of leading manufacturing concerns.

Some of these are: Good times in general, demand built in period of restricted production after outbreak of the Korean War, bumper crop of World War 2 babies now in the seven-to-14-year-old age group reaching the age for taking piano lessons, a general increase in interest in music, growing popularity of the low-priced spinet (a waist-high upright instrument), intensive advertisement to stir the interest of youngsters in playing the piano.

J. A. Stahl, plant superintendent, who has been associated with the local establishment for more than 30 years, pointed out to this reporter that the current March-April business had been the "best I ever knew." He explained that it slowed in the summer but picked up again in August and that the busiest season came from August to January. The plant has been working a six-day week since September 1.

Founded in 1895

The Ramsey Corp. was founded in New York in 1895 by Charles Ramsey and came to Kingston in 1909. Mrs. Elsie C. Rick is president and treasurer, Edward H. Rick, vice-president, Kapreilian, secretary and general manager, Harry C. Kapreilian, Jr., is assistant sales manager and also has charge of the shipping department.

According to a recent page one story in the Wall Street Journal, National Piano Manufacturing Association reports show shipments in January and February of this year was at the highest point in more than a quarter of a century.

B. F. Duvall, vice president and secretary of W. W. Kimball Co., Chicago, predicts a total production in 1953 of over 180,000 pianos, 5,000 above the 1950 output and the highest since 1927.

At Grand Haven, Mich., George H. Stapely, president of Everett Piano Co., reports the plant has been operating at full capacity since last September on a nine-hour day.

R. C. Rolfing, president of Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., of Chicago, says the company is having no trouble selling all the pianos it can make.

How Music Is Made

The article in the Wall Street Journal describes the making of music in a piano as follows: "A piano makes music when hammers of high-grade felt strike strings of varying thicknesses and lengths strung on a harp-like cast iron plate. These strings of high tensile strength are so taut they exert a pressure of 10,000 to 17,000 pounds on the plate. The strings are stretched across a wooden bridge glued to a spruce sounding board. When the strings vibrate the movement is transmitted to the sounding board by the bridge and the sounding board amplifies the vibrations into music.

Wounds Intruder After Daughter

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 13 (AP)—Dr. Laban Lacy Rice, 83-year-old lecturer and former university president, shot and seriously wounded a man who attempted to carry off his daughter in a week-end invasion of their home in suburban Gulfport.

Joe Ciani, 46, a carpenter, is in serious condition in a hospital from bullet wounds in the chest and shoulder but he is expected to recover.

Rice, who used a 50-year-old pistol to halt Ciani, also accidentally shot his daughter, Mrs. Katherine Shaw, 58, in one hand. She was treated for the wound and shock.

Sheriff Sid Saunders said Ciani had been interested romantically in Mrs. Shaw since she hired him for some carpentry work three years ago. Several months ago, police were called when Ciani went to the Gulfport home to press his attentions on Mrs. Shaw.

Saturday night he returned to the home, Saunders said, and when Rice ordered him to leave, Ciani picked up Mrs. Shaw, who weighs about 120 pounds, and ran out of the house with her. The shooting followed.

No Charges Filed

Rice, after being held overnight in jail, was released Sunday. No charges have been filed

Mrs. Shaw is the widow of Dr. James Shaw, a prominent St. Petersburg dentist who killed himself in a hotel room in Ocala in 1942 because of illness.

Police said Rice told them he was anxious to "get any legal technicalities out of the way" so he could leave for a scheduled lecture tour among northern colleges. He had planned to leave Tuesday.

Peace Justice Clyde Kissinger indicated that Rice would be allowed to go on the tour.

Rice is an international authority on relativity and astronomy and author of the book, "The Universe, Its Origin, Nature and Destiny."

City Cancer Drive Progress Pleasing, Baltz Announces

Results of the first week of house-to-house canvassing in the 1953 campaign of the American Cancer Society surpassed that of previous years, it was announced today by Chester Baltz, Jr., city chairman.

"We are very much pleased with the early returns from this year's Cancer Crusade, both in the house-to-house canvass and in the canvass by letter. Our citizens seem to realize that this is their own fight as well as ours and are supporting us to a greater extent than ever before."

Baltz said if no one had called at a particular home it was because the campaign was still young and many workers had not yet covered their territory. He pointed out that there was a shortage of volunteers but explained that a contribution could be mailed simply by addressing the envelope "Cancer" in care of the local postmaster.

Denies Kickbacks

Newark, N. J., April 13 (AP)—Mayor Ralph Villani denies wrongdoing in accepting campaign contributions from his employes. A grand jury presentment last week accused the mayor of Newark of violating a public trust by receiving money "extorted" from employes in return for promotions or pay increases. In a statement Saturday, the first since the presentment, Villani said employe contributions are "part and parcel on all levels * * *." He denied there were any kickbacks. All the money received was in contributions for welfare and political purposes, he said.

Atom Study Approved

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Two private companies have been authorized by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to find out how and when nuclear power can be put to peacetime use. The AEC said the companies—Pioneer Service and Engineering Co. of Chicago and Foster Wheeler Corp., of New York—will conduct a one-year study to determine whether private industry can build an atomic reactor "in the next few years.

Riot Dwindles to Shouts

Stillwater, Minn., April 13 (AP)—Officials at the Minnesota state prison maintained quiet watchfulness today as demonstrations by disgruntled convicts tapered off to a few shouts. More than 800 prisoners were held in their cells for the third day. This morning's breakfast marked the sixth meal they missed since the rebellion started Saturday morning. Most of them, however, had candy and fruit purchased at a commissary just before the outbreak.

10 Die in Sub Crash

London, April 13 (AP)—The toll in the London subway crash reached 10 today with the death of an injured passenger in a hospital. Six others still are being treated in hospitals, but none is in a serious condition. The accident occurred Wednesday night. Two trains, crowded with homeward bound workers, crashed near an East End station.

Below Normal Mercury Readings Hit All of U. S.

(By The Associated Press)

The upper midwest had freezing temperatures today as the entire nation experienced cooler than normal weather. There were rains in New England, showers on the northern Pacific coast and some snow in the northern Rocky mountains.

Freezing temperatures were reported as far south as west-central Illinois and central Kansas. Minot, N. D., reported 18 degrees.

A storm center off the southern New England coast brought rain and strong winds to that area, and during the night as far west as Ohio and Southern Indiana.

Showers and thunderstorms in Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas dumped as much as 2.57 inches on Atlanta and three inches on Appalachiola, Fla.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

Denver, April 13 (AP) — Sex hormones working on women's breasts between ages 20 and 40 may start breast cancers appearing at 55 or 60, a physician said today.

This is a clue to a treatment of breast cancers with both female and male sex hormones, which has benefited a few women. It also is a long-range clue to prevention of human cancers.

The experiments were described to science reporters starting a two-week tour, organized by the American Cancer Society, of cancer research centers in Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, Tex., and New Orleans.

The hormone guilt is indicated in mouse experiments by Dr. Robert Huseby, University of Colorado School of Medicine.

Fault in Amounts

Specifically, he said, the fault seems to be in the amounts and inter-play of female and male sex hormones in the body. Female hormone stimulates the breast. Male hormone may protect the breast from too much female hormone. The balance of hormones may be out of kilter in women who later get breast cancer. Still other hormones may be involved.

Just what the mix-up in hormone pattern may be is still a mystery. If the normal balance can be learned, blood tests might make it possible to learn which women needed extra amounts of various hormones while young in order to prevent cancer later.

Clasped in Death

Canton, Conn., April 13 (AP)—A man and the young nephew he tried to save died in each other's arms in a fire early today, after the man previously had helped get the rest of the family to safety. Police said Russell Birstol, 49, discovered the fire in the two-story frame house of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wagner, and awakened them. They escaped through windows, and Bristol carried out their 13-year-old son, George. He then rushed back inside after 9-year-old Jerry Wagner. Their bodies were found near an upstairs window, their arms clasping each other.

Plans 'Great Crusade'

Manila, April 13 (AP)—Ramon Magsaysay, former defense secretary, today planned a "great crusade" to wrest the Philippines presidency from the man and the party he quit in a sharp break. Magsaysay accepted a landslide 705-49 nomination Sunday to run on the anti-administration Nacionalista ticket next November. The one-time scourge of Communist-led Huk outlaws probably will face President Elpidio Quirino, his former boss, who seems certain to be nominated again by the administration Liberty party next month. Magsaysay quit the Liberal party in disagreement with Quirino over how to rid the Philippines of the Huks.

Pop's Marble Board

By FRANK TRIPP

What has become of the marble shark? That juvenile genius who at Spring's end had all of the marbles in the neighborhood and swapped them for treasures owned by the kids from whom he won them.

One needn't be very old to remember an average of three marble games a block. As soon as the ground was soft enough for a boy's heel to bore a hole for a target, shooting marbles at it took possession of the kids who played "for keeps."

When dad got out his trout rod, out came Sonny's marbles for Spring inventory and classification as treasures, shooters, swappers or plain everyday riskers—gambling marbles in plain words.

There were glassies, agates and migs, ranging from an inch and a half in diameter down to three-eights of an inch.

THE GLASSIES were most valuable, the ones most sought, beauties with varied colors blown in them, yet they were the least useful of the whole kit; chipped easily in play or when dropped on a stone sidewalk.

The agates, sometimes called crockeries, could take it and every boy had his pet aggie shooter, same as golfers have pet clubs, and bowlers their favorite bail. The shooter was the tool with which to fill the marble sack.

There was a market for marbles, just like for stocks and bonds. The lowest in value was the mig, something like cheap china, and seldom perfectly round. They sold ten for a cent.

Migs constituted the bulk of a boy's "portfolio" and were his swappers. He wanted a lot of 'em to trade for aggies and glassies.

"I'll swap you 15 migs for that glassy," he'd say.

"Skiddo" his friend would reply, "That glassy is worth 30 migs."

"I'll give you 20."

"It's 30 migs or no swap"—then they'd dicker.

All Spring, till the swimming hole warmed up, the marble games and swaps went on. By then a few kids would have all of the marbles and the others would be broke.

CHANCES WERE that the lads with the most marbles were the ones who had the "boards"—the first racketeers that I ever encountered. A board was a stick of wood about a foot long with several arched gateways of different widths cut into its edge.

The largest opening paid least, had a "1" penciled over it; the smallest, just wide enough to admit a shooter, was marked "10." The suckers would shoot at the board from distances prescribed by the handicap that their prowess had established.

They would be paid in migs when they made a hole, in case they did. Only the lucky could win or break even. When one did, next time he would have to shoot from a longer distance or the kid with the board would reduce the odds. Like has happened to you in the stock market.

ONE SPRING after I had gone broke twice playing the boards, my father made me one. Pop's subtle wisdom got me in a peck of trouble. He made the gates too wide and I told him so, but he insisted I'd get more players. He was a foxy gent.

I got players all right, but they cleaned me again. Just like happened years later, I had to go back to winning my marbles one at a time. Pop seemed tickled.

By season's end I had paid my debts and had reached the conclusion that I wasn't born to get rich any quick and easy way, still wasn't cured.

Alas, I've said it before, "once a sucker, always a sucker." Plenty old enough to know better, I tried the board again—this time the big board. History repeated.

Wish Pop had been around in 1929.

New York Is Urged To Ask Own Session

New York, April 13 (AP)—New York city was urged to seek a special session of the 1953 state Legislature as public hearings were scheduled to start today on the city's record executive budget for the next fiscal year.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri's budget and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's program of financial aid to the city were slated for thorough discussion by dozens of speakers at the three days of hearings.

Impellitteri's budget for the year starting July 1 amounts to $1,528,812,795 and provides for a state-proposed authority to take over the city's transit system and wipe away a 47 million dollar deficit.

Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner, Jr., and City Council President Rudolph Halley yesterday asked a special session of the Legislature to offer a new program on city finances. Both city officials have in the past attacked the transit authority plan.

Representatives of organized city employes were expected to attack the budget in similar terms at today's hearing. The AFL Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes called a noon rally for today in City Hall Park. The union says the budget incorporating the state financial plan threatens municipal jobholders.

May and June Milk Supply to be Greatest

New York, April 13 (AP)—A prediction of a record surplus of milk in the New York milkshed in May and June has been coupled with a plea that New Yorkers drink an extra glass of milk a day.

C. J. Blanford, federal-state administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, said in a statement yesterday that there "will be more milk available in May and June than there ever has been before."

He added that the surplus "will not be a problem if every consumer in the New York area will drink only one extra glass a day."

Blanford said the extra glass would be a "neighborly" service to farmers who have the surplus; a "patriotic" service to the government which might have to buy some of the surplus in the form of butter and cheese; and a "healthful" service to the consumers.

Pop's Marble Board

By FRANK TRIPP

What has become of the marble shark? That juvenile genius who at Spring's end had all of the marbles in the neighborhood and swapped them for treasures owned by the kids from whom he won them.

One needn't be very old to remember an average of three marble games a block. As soon as the ground was soft enough for a boy's heel to bore a hole for a target, shooting marbles at it took possession of the kids who played "for keeps."

When dad got out his trout rod, out came Sonny's marbles for Spring inventory and classification as treasures, shooters, swappers or plain everyday riskers—gambling marbles in plain words.

There were glassies, agates and migs, ranging from an inch and a half in diameter down to three-eights of an inch.

THE GLASSIES were most valuable, the ones most sought, beauties with varied colors blown in them, yet they were the least useful of the whole kit; chipped easily in play or when dropped on a stone sidewalk.

The agates, sometimes called crockeries, could take it and every boy had his pet aggie shooter, same as golfers have pet clubs, and bowlers their favorite bail. The shooter was the tool with which to fill the marble sack.

There was a market for marbles, just like for stocks and bonds. The lowest in value was the mig, something like cheap china, and seldom perfectly round. They sold ten for a cent.

Migs constituted the bulk of a boy's "portfolio" and were his swappers. He wanted a lot of 'em to trade for aggies and glassies.

"I'll swap you 15 migs for that glassy," he'd say.

"Skiddo" his friend would reply, "That glassy is worth 30 migs."

"I'll give you 20."

"It's 30 migs or no swap"—then they'd dicker.

All Spring, till the swimming hole warmed up, the marble games and swaps went on. By then a few kids would have all of the marbles and the others would be broke.

CHANCES WERE that the lads with the most marbles were the ones who had the "boards"—the first racketeers that I ever encountered. A board was a stick of wood about a foot long with several arched gateways of different widths cut into its edge.

The largest opening paid least, had a "1" penciled over it; the smallest, just wide enough to admit a shooter, was marked "10." The suckers would shoot at the board from distances prescribed by the handicap that their prowess had established.

They would be paid in migs when they made a hole, in case they did. Only the lucky could win or break even. When one did, next time he would have to shoot from a longer distance or the kid with the board would reduce the odds. Like has happened to you in the stock market.

ONE SPRING after I had gone broke twice playing the boards, my father made me one. Pop's subtle wisdom got me in a peck of trouble. He made the gates too wide and I told him so, but he insisted I'd get more players. He was a foxy gent.

I got players all right, but they cleaned me again. Just like happened years later, I had to go back to winning my marbles one at a time. Pop seemed tickled.

By season's end I had paid my debts and had reached the conclusion that I wasn't born to get rich any quick and easy way, still wasn't cured.

Alas, I've said it before, "once a sucker, always a sucker." Plenty old enough to know better, I tried the board again—this time the big board. History repeated.

Wish Pop had been around in 1929.

May and June Milk Supply to be Greatest

New York, April 13 (AP)—A prediction of a record surplus of milk in the New York milkshed in May and June has been coupled with a plea that New Yorkers drink an extra glass of milk a day.

C. J. Blanford, federal-state administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, said in a statement yesterday that there "will be more milk available in May and June than there ever has been before."

He added that the surplus "will not be a problem if every consumer in the New York area will drink only one extra glass a day."

Blanford said the extra glass would be a "neighborly" service to farmers who have the surplus; a "patriotic" service to the government which might have to buy some of the surplus in the form of butter and cheese; and a "healthful" service to the consumers.

Forests in some parts of Africa are so thick that most animals cannot live in them. They are inhabited by reptiles, monkeys, and birds.

Hold Husband for Death Of Wife, Small Baby

New York, April 13 (AP) — A mother of eight children and her two months old baby were stabbed to death last night and police arrested the husband.

Dead were Mrs. Paula Suarez, 42, and Jesus Suarez.

The arrested man was Angel Suarez, 33, police said he suffered from a superficial stab wound over his heart. They quoted him as saying he had planned to leap to his death from the roof of a six-story low rental housing project where they lived in Queens.

Police said one of the seven surviving Suarez children, Virginia, 13, reported a sudden argument flared between the husand and wife.

New York Is Urged To Ask Own Session

New York, April 13 (AP)—New York city was urged to seek a special session of the 1953 state Legislature as public hearings were scheduled to start today on the city's record executive budget for the next fiscal year.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri's budget and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's program of financial aid to the city were slated for thorough discussion by dozens of speakers at the three days of hearings.

Impellitteri's budget for the year starting July 1 amounts to $1,528,812,795 and provides for a state-proposed authority to take over the city's transit system and wipe away a 47 million dollar deficit.

Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner, Jr., and City Council President Rudolph Halley yesterday asked a special session of the Legislature to offer a new program on city finances. Both city officials have in the past attacked the transit authority plan.

Representatives of organized city employes were expected to attack the budget in similar terms at today's hearing. The AFL Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes called a noon rally for today in City Hall Park. The union says the budget incorporating the state financial plan threatens municipal jobholders.

JOE RUDD

Joe Rudd, expert cabinet maker, brought home two weeks' pay and boastfully showed it to his wife. It totaled more than $425! Joe gets $3.15 an hour for straight time, but for overtime he receives $6.30 an hour.

His latest job was in a bank. He worked 7 hours daily straight time and 5 hours overtime on Saturdays and Sundays. Thus, he earned $217.35 a week!

Concetta, his wife, was elated. She is the center of a joyful, harmonious family. Joe is hale and hearty. Money, in his economic philosophy of life, is to spend. His savings are small.

On the very day that Joe brought home his large earnings, Concetta had seen a television set that she adored. It could be bought for $100 down, with the rest of the payments extended over many months.

Joe is the epitome of generosity. When Concetta told him she wanted that big new set, he grinned from ear to ear. Taking for granted that it would be bought "on time," he asked her, 'How much do you need?"

"One hundred dollars," she said. Joe peeled off ten $10 Federal reserve notes and, handing them to her, asked: "When will it be delivered?"

That is only part of the story. Joe is in hock a dozen other places. But with earnings of from $150 to $200 a week, he should worry. He is a fine workman. He is never sick and, from the looks of things, he will have work for a long time.

Looking beneath the surface, however, one finds disquieting circumstances. A good job, fine health, high wages, vocational opportunities, easy consumer credit and a desire for a high standard of living—all these have conspired to prevent him from achieving a full economic life.

What is lacking? A thrift and savings and investment program. Mark my word, sometime, some place, this economic lack will come home to him and his family. It would have been far better for Concetta to have taken that $100 to a savings bank to open an account than to use it in setting up another $350 debt.

Consumer credit is being discussed widely in America. Economists in their lofty towers are saying that a country like America can easily stand time-payment debts of over $23,000,000,000. Others, examining the state of the nation's economic health, are not too worried.

But I say that with 10,000,000 heads of families in hock in the average amount of $2,300, with meager savings and inadequate assets, this vast volume of consumer credit is too high. I know too many families similarly situated to classify this situation as inconsequential.

Good jobs, high wages, regular employment and a fine standard of living are all splendid. But when they are accompanied by regular borrowing and by neglected thrift and savings, something is wrong.

Every reader who emulates Joe and Concetta should put on his thinking cap and reverse some of his spending habits. A full economic life features work, thrift, saving and investment. This should never be forgotten.

The Forum

(Q) "What, in your opinion, are basically the weakest common stocks today?"

(A) This question fits right into my article. The stocks of corporations whose prosperity is based on (1) the cold war and (2) on consumer credit are weakest. Their economic foundations are somewhat artificially supported, and investors purchasing them should watch carefully the tides that may change direction quickly.

Modena

Modena, April 11—The Wesleyan Service Guild of the Modena Methodist Church postponed its regular meeting Tuesday, April 7, owing to some of the members planning a trip to New York on that date. The meeting will be held Tuesday, April 14, at 8 p. m. at the home of Jean Crane in Modena, when the annual election of officers will be conducted. Program planning for the coming year also is planned. Elsie Coy will be in charge of the program when the study of Africa will be completed.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Modena Methodist Church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. William Decker Thursday afternoon. Attending were Mrs. Anna E. Miller, Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., Mrs. Anna Tonnesen, Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Lester I. Arnold, Mrs. Myron L. Shultis, Mrs. Hallock Harris, Mrs. Stewart Pink, Mrs. Floyd B. Wells and guest, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Edward Atchinsen, Mrs. William A. Imler and Mrs. Lillian Courter. A meeting of the parsonage committee was arranged for May 22, members being Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Stewart Pink, Mrs. Floyd B. Wells and Mrs. William Decker. The tentative date of the annual church fair and supper was set as July 16 at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall in Modena. Mrs. Anna Tonnesen will be hostess to the May meeting of the society.

Further information from Leslie Decker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Decker, now stationed in Korea, that he has been promoted to corporal and expects to arrive home at an earlier date than previously stated.

Word has been received here of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Fowler of Clintondale. Mrs. Fowler, the former Shirley M. Harcourt of Modena, resigned her position as teacher in the Highland Central School recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schaudel of New Paltz were among visitors entertained Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and sons.

Christine Matheisen has returned to her home in New Jersey after spending part of the Easter vacation with her grandmother, Mrs. Alvina Matheisen.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I wonder how many folks have the old "Freeman Directory of the City of Kingston." I have one of 1898. It is sturdy made on good paper and in good large print. In those days our city directory was compiled by the daily Freeman staff and was printed at the Kingston Freeman Job Print House. It sold for $2.00. My 1898 issue has 300 pages and a good hard cover. One of the first advs. on the inside of the front cover reads: "Dr. Sahler's Sanitarium, office 322 Wall street. Special departments. Vital magnetic. Suggestive therapeutic. Nervous disorders and mental delusions. All kinds of headaches and pains." They list everything from hay fever to writer's cramp, somnambulism, rheumatic affections and even kleptomania. Item also states in large letters: "Cancers removed without use of knife."

The next full page adv. is of Amasa J. Ormerod, cafe and restaurant at 41 The Strand, Rondout, N. Y. . . . "lobsters and soft shell crabs, oysters and clams, game in season. Choice steaks and chops, fresh vegetables, cuisine unsurpassed." I remember Ormerod's very well, for in the days when the little Skillypot ferry used to run, I wanted to visit my father's drug store on Sundays and my father would take me there for dinner. The food was out of this world. I think, one could get an eight course dinner for 25 cents in the early 1920's. Their rice-puddings were very special. It was like good rich cake, never oozy with watery milk. Their meats were tender and delicious and side dishes were in separate little chubby dishes, many of them, as I remember. In my day Peter Keresman presided over the dining room. Even then he had the charm to greet all the guests with a grand manner, although he must have been just in his teens. Today Peter Keresman is executive secretary of the Police Conference of New York state, which covers some 40,000 members of the police force throughout the state.

Back in 1898 William D. Brinnier was mayor, Christopher A. Murray, recorder, Frederick Stephan, Jr., city judge, Morris Block, treasurer and Wilgott Klingberg, city engineer. I remember Mr. Klingberg as he was our landlord down at 46 Broadway. Mrs. Elizabeth Hutton, his mother-in-law, owned a number of properties on Broadway and in time he managed them. Many of the Rondout storekeepers later bought the buildings in which they were located. Later I think Mr. Klingberg moved to Long Island as we sent the rent down there. Stephen D. Hood was chief of police at the time. I see Chief Hood is listed as a lawyer. Among the policemen then were Thomas B. Cullen, James McIntyre, Frederick Heppner, Michael J. White, Michael J. Leonard, Cornelius Van Buren, John Sullivan, and Patrick J. White. Just the other day some of the members of the Recreation Department were recalling the days when Patrick J. White was a policeman and Harry Staples was truant officer. The young ones were more rugged perhaps in those days, but they had a difficult time getting into trouble, more than once with White on the beat or being on Staples' list. I wonder how those two men would handle the prevailing outbreak of juvenile delinquency today.

JOE RUDD

Joe Rudd, expert cabinet maker, brought home two weeks' pay and boastfully showed it to his wife. It totaled more than $425! Joe gets $3.15 an hour for straight time, but for overtime he receives $6.30 an hour.

His latest job was in a bank. He worked 7 hours daily straight time and 5 hours overtime on Saturdays and Sundays. Thus, he earned $217.35 a week!

Concetta, his wife, was elated. She is the center of a joyful, harmonious family. Joe is hale and hearty. Money, in his economic philosophy of life, is to spend. His savings are small.

On the very day that Joe brought home his large earnings, Concetta had seen a television set that she adored. It could be bought for $100 down, with the rest of the payments extended over many months.

Joe is the epitome of generosity. When Concetta told him she wanted that big new set, he grinned from ear to ear. Taking for granted that it would be bought "on time," he asked her, 'How much do you need?"

"One hundred dollars," she said. Joe peeled off ten $10 Federal reserve notes and, handing them to her, asked: "When will it be delivered?"

That is only part of the story. Joe is in hock a dozen other places. But with earnings of from $150 to $200 a week, he should worry. He is a fine workman. He is never sick and, from the looks of things, he will have work for a long time.

Looking beneath the surface, however, one finds disquieting circumstances. A good job, fine health, high wages, vocational opportunities, easy consumer credit and a desire for a high standard of living—all these have conspired to prevent him from achieving a full economic life.

What is lacking? A thrift and savings and investment program. Mark my word, sometime, some place, this economic lack will come home to him and his family. It would have been far better for Concetta to have taken that $100 to a savings bank to open an account than to use it in setting up another $350 debt.

Consumer credit is being discussed widely in America. Economists in their lofty towers are saying that a country like America can easily stand time-payment debts of over $23,000,000,000. Others, examining the state of the nation's economic health, are not too worried.

But I say that with 10,000,000 heads of families in hock in the average amount of $2,300, with meager savings and inadequate assets, this vast volume of consumer credit is too high. I know too many families similarly situated to classify this situation as inconsequential.

Good jobs, high wages, regular employment and a fine standard of living are all splendid. But when they are accompanied by regular borrowing and by neglected thrift and savings, something is wrong.

Every reader who emulates Joe and Concetta should put on his thinking cap and reverse some of his spending habits. A full economic life features work, thrift, saving and investment. This should never be forgotten.

The Forum

(Q) "What, in your opinion, are basically the weakest common stocks today?"

(A) This question fits right into my article. The stocks of corporations whose prosperity is based on (1) the cold war and (2) on consumer credit are weakest. Their economic foundations are somewhat artificially supported, and investors purchasing them should watch carefully the tides that may change direction quickly.

Modena

Modena, April 11—The Wesleyan Service Guild of the Modena Methodist Church postponed its regular meeting Tuesday, April 7, owing to some of the members planning a trip to New York on that date. The meeting will be held Tuesday, April 14, at 8 p. m. at the home of Jean Crane in Modena, when the annual election of officers will be conducted. Program planning for the coming year also is planned. Elsie Coy will be in charge of the program when the study of Africa will be completed.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Modena Methodist Church held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. William Decker Thursday afternoon. Attending were Mrs. Anna E. Miller, Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., Mrs. Anna Tonnesen, Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Lester I. Arnold, Mrs. Myron L. Shultis, Mrs. Hallock Harris, Mrs. Stewart Pink, Mrs. Floyd B. Wells and guest, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Edward Atchinsen, Mrs. William A. Imler and Mrs. Lillian Courter. A meeting of the parsonage committee was arranged for May 22, members being Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Stewart Pink, Mrs. Floyd B. Wells and Mrs. William Decker. The tentative date of the annual church fair and supper was set as July 16 at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall in Modena. Mrs. Anna Tonnesen will be hostess to the May meeting of the society.

Further information from Leslie Decker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Decker, now stationed in Korea, that he has been promoted to corporal and expects to arrive home at an earlier date than previously stated.

Word has been received here of the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Fowler of Clintondale. Mrs. Fowler, the former Shirley M. Harcourt of Modena, resigned her position as teacher in the Highland Central School recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schaudel of New Paltz were among visitors entertained Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and sons.

Christine Matheisen has returned to her home in New Jersey after spending part of the Easter vacation with her grandmother, Mrs. Alvina Matheisen.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I wonder how many folks have the old "Freeman Directory of the City of Kingston." I have one of 1898. It is sturdy made on good paper and in good large print. In those days our city directory was compiled by the daily Freeman staff and was printed at the Kingston Freeman Job Print House. It sold for $2.00. My 1898 issue has 300 pages and a good hard cover. One of the first advs. on the inside of the front cover reads: "Dr. Sahler's Sanitarium, office 322 Wall street. Special departments. Vital magnetic. Suggestive therapeutic. Nervous disorders and mental delusions. All kinds of headaches and pains." They list everything from hay fever to writer's cramp, somnambulism, rheumatic affections and even kleptomania. Item also states in large letters: "Cancers removed without use of knife."

The next full page adv. is of Amasa J. Ormerod, cafe and restaurant at 41 The Strand, Rondout, N. Y. . . . "lobsters and soft shell crabs, oysters and clams, game in season. Choice steaks and chops, fresh vegetables, cuisine unsurpassed." I remember Ormerod's very well, for in the days when the little Skillypot ferry used to run, I wanted to visit my father's drug store on Sundays and my father would take me there for dinner. The food was out of this world. I think, one could get an eight course dinner for 25 cents in the early 1920's. Their rice-puddings were very special. It was like good rich cake, never oozy with watery milk. Their meats were tender and delicious and side dishes were in separate little chubby dishes, many of them, as I remember. In my day Peter Keresman presided over the dining room. Even then he had the charm to greet all the guests with a grand manner, although he must have been just in his teens. Today Peter Keresman is executive secretary of the Police Conference of New York state, which covers some 40,000 members of the police force throughout the state.

Back in 1898 William D. Brinnier was mayor, Christopher A. Murray, recorder, Frederick Stephan, Jr., city judge, Morris Block, treasurer and Wilgott Klingberg, city engineer. I remember Mr. Klingberg as he was our landlord down at 46 Broadway. Mrs. Elizabeth Hutton, his mother-in-law, owned a number of properties on Broadway and in time he managed them. Many of the Rondout storekeepers later bought the buildings in which they were located. Later I think Mr. Klingberg moved to Long Island as we sent the rent down there. Stephen D. Hood was chief of police at the time. I see Chief Hood is listed as a lawyer. Among the policemen then were Thomas B. Cullen, James McIntyre, Frederick Heppner, Michael J. White, Michael J. Leonard, Cornelius Van Buren, John Sullivan, and Patrick J. White. Just the other day some of the members of the Recreation Department were recalling the days when Patrick J. White was a policeman and Harry Staples was truant officer. The young ones were more rugged perhaps in those days, but they had a difficult time getting into trouble, more than once with White on the beat or being on Staples' list. I wonder how those two men would handle the prevailing outbreak of juvenile delinquency today.

Miss Prokoby was one of seven girls nominated by her senior classmates. She was elected by the members of the student body on March 27, but her choice as Queen was not revealed until 11 p. m. on Friday during the coronation march, the high point of the prom.

The young Queen lives at 20 Park street, Ellenville, and was graduated from Ellenville High School. She is majoring in Medical technology, and will begin a career as a laboratory technician upon graduation this spring.

A member of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, she has been active in campus affairs during her four years at Wagner. Speaker Is Named For Rondout Lodge Old Timers' Reunion

The Rev. Ralph M. Houston, DD, pastor of St. James Methodist Church of this city will be the speaker at the annual observance of Old Timers' Reunion Night by Rondout Lodge at the Masonic Temple Monday evening, April 20.

On this occasion Rondout Lodge pays tribute to those members who have completed 25 or more years of membership in the Masonic Fraternity. Fred W. Ahlers, chairman of the committee on arrangements on compiling the list of these members, found that they constitute approximately one-half of the total membership of Rondout Lodge. Thirteen members can point with pride to the fact that they have completed from 50 to 60 years of membership.

The Rev. Dr. Houston was born in New York but resided in this city with his parents during a large part of his early life. He received his Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Divinity degrees at Ohio Wesleyan University and Bachelor of Divinity degree at Union Theological Seminary. Before assuming his pastorate at St. James Church, Dr. Houston served as pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Newburgh, First Methodist Church, Yonkers and district superintendent of Methodist Churches in New York. Fraternally, Dr. Houston is a member of Woodbury Lodge, 993, F&AM, Central Valley.

Another noteworthy part of the program will be the presentation of the 50-year Grand Lodge service medal to Munroe Burger by Alexander S. Anderson, Jr., of Windham, district deputy grand master of the Greene-Ulster Masonic district. Mr. Burger joined Rondout Lodge in 1902, and is being awarded this medal in recognition of the active interest he has always shown in the affairs of Rondout Lodge and for having faithfully served as its secretary for many years.

All Master Masons are cordially and fraternally invited to attend.

AVOIDING WASTE

An obviously self-conscious woman asks if it was bad manners to give half an untouched serving of food on her plate to her husband. She explains: "We were eating in a restaurant the other evening and, as I am not a very big eater, and the portions were exceptionally large, I couldn't finish it all. My husband, who has a very healthy appetite, was still hungry and so he passed his plate across to me and I put the untouched portion on his plate. My daughter, who was dining with us, criticized me for doing this and said it was not good manners."

I see nothing wrong in saving this food from waste. Furthermore, there is very slight chance that anyone in the dining room noticed it.

Bridegroom's Divorced Parents

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it permissible to invite the bridegroom's father to the wedding, and not his wife, when he has remarried? My daughter's fiance's parents are divorced and his mother refuses to come to the wedding if her ex-husband's wife should be present. The bridegroom lives with his mother although his father sent him through college and has done much for him financially. Naturally, he would like his father to be present at the wedding if possible.

Answer: I am afraid that this is a problem to be settled by the bridegroom, who will have to ask his father if he will come without his wife, or convince his mother that her stand is unreasonable.

Asking Someone to Move Over

Dear Mrs. Post: When eating at a lunch counter, is it proper to ask a person who is sitting with an empty seat on either side of him to move over so that two friends may sit together?

Answer: If the person is young and has not too many dishes in front of him, it would not be unreasonable to ask him if he would mind moving so that you and your friend can sit together.

The young Queen lives at 20 Park street, Ellenville, and was graduated from Ellenville High School. She is majoring in Medical technology, and will begin a career as a laboratory technician upon graduation this spring.

A member of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, she has been active in campus affairs during her four years at Wagner. The Rev. Ralph M. Houston, DD, pastor of St. James Methodist Church of this city will be the speaker at the annual observance of Old Timers' Reunion Night by Rondout Lodge at the Masonic Temple Monday evening, April 20.

On this occasion Rondout Lodge pays tribute to those members who have completed 25 or more years of membership in the Masonic Fraternity. Fred W. Ahlers, chairman of the committee on arrangements on compiling the list of these members, found that they constitute approximately one-half of the total membership of Rondout Lodge. Thirteen members can point with pride to the fact that they have completed from 50 to 60 years of membership.

The Rev. Dr. Houston was born in New York but resided in this city with his parents during a large part of his early life. Child's Fear of Dark May Be Fear Love Is Switched Off

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Mother talked to Kay about the baby that was coming, Kap appeared to understand. She didn't. Only two years old, she got confused and thought the baby was the new crib that had been installed in Mother's room. When the baby was mentioned, she would run to the crib, hug one of its bars and cry excitedly, "Baby sister, baby brother!"

Aunt Ruth's voice didn't lilt like Mother's. Kay had to eat her cereal with an instrument that was not Your Own Spoon. Aunt Ruth didn't pat her deliciously all over with a puff after her bath, raising the sweet-smelling cloud of powder that was as much a part of Mother as the lilt in her voice.

And when Mother came home, she only spoke with the lilt occasionally. She was too busy to tap Kay all over with the bath puff. Your Own Spoon came back—but Mother had to nurse the baby instead of watching and applauding when Kay ate.

This disappearance of the familiar bewildered Kay. It made her afraid of all disappearances. So darkness in her room at night became formidable and threatening.

It extinguished the trusted shapes of the rocking horse under the window, the clown doll tied to the foot of her bed. Losing them was too much for Kay after losing parts of Mother. She began to cry when Mother kissed her good night and tried to leave her room.

Fear of darkness is often fear that love has been extinguished along with the bedroom light.

We can do two things to help Kay. We can provide a night light that proves the rocking horse and clown doll still survive. And we can take steps to assure Kay that in darkness or light, upstairs or downstairs, Mother is in her room.

As indeed she is. Everything in Kay's room is us. The comfort of her bed, the warmth of her pink blanket, all derive from our protective care. Kay's room itself exists only as an extension of our desire to shelter her. It is our work and our love made visible.

We mustn't let Kay get to thinking that we can be extinguished by a light switch. We can't be. We're Kay's environment. Once we are wise enough to see it, we'll find it easy to help her feel cozy and safe.

We can't guarantee anyone our constant physical presence. Children outgrow their anxious dependence on it when we ourselves begin to value the love behind the material provisions we make for their comfort.

In today's hand South's opening bid of one no-trump shows balanced distribution, a stopper in at least three suits (probably four), and a count of 16 to 18 points. North can well afford to go to game, since he has balanced distribution and a count of 11 points.

North simply adds his own 11 points to the strength shown by South in the opening bid. The total is bound to be at least 27 points and at most 29 points. This should be enough for game, but not enough for a slam.

West attacks the weak point by leading a spade, and East takes the ace. When East returns his low spade, South hopefully finesses the jack, but West wins with the queen. West leads another spade, dummy discards a diamond, East discards a heart, and South wins with the king.

It is quite clear that South must develop the clubs in order to make his contract. Normally, declarer would take a finesse, hoping to find the king in the East hand. In this case, however, a finesse would lose to West's singleton king, whereupon West would run the rest of the spades to defeat the contract.

South should not risk the finesse in this case. If West has two or more clubs headed by the king, nothing can be done; the contract is bound to go down. If West happens to hold the singleton king of clubs (as he does in this case) he must not be allowed to win a trick with it.

Hence declarer begins his clubs by laying down the ace. West must sadly play his singleton king on declarer's ace, and the rest is easy.

What if the king of clubs happens to be in the East hand? Then South has given up one club trick that he might have won by means of a finesse. However, South can well afford to give up one club trick to East, since East is known to be out of spades.

The point is that South can afford to lose a trick to the non-dangerous opponent but cannot afford to lose a trick to the dangerous opponent.

When the baby was mentioned, she would run to the crib, hug one of its bars and cry excitedly, "Baby sister, baby brother!"

Then one morning, she woke up to find Aunt Ruth waiting beside her to wash and dress her.

Aunt Ruth's voice didn't lilt like Mother's. Kay had to eat her cereal with an instrument that was not Your Own Spoon. Aunt Ruth didn't pat her deliciously all over with a puff after her bath, raising the sweet-smelling cloud of powder that was as much a part of Mother as the lilt in her voice.

And when Mother came home, she only spoke with the lilt occasionally. She was too busy to tap Kay all over with the bath puff. Your Own Spoon came back—but Mother had to nurse the baby instead of watching and applauding when Kay ate.

This disappearance of the familiar bewildered Kay. It made her afraid of all disappearances. So darkness in her room at night became formidable and threatening.

It extinguished the trusted shapes of the rocking horse under the window, the clown doll tied to the foot of her bed. Losing them was too much for Kay after losing parts of Mother. She began to cry when Mother kissed her good night and tried to leave her room.

Fear of darkness is often fear that love has been extinguished along with the bedroom light.

We can do two things to help Kay. We can provide a night light that proves the rocking horse and clown doll still survive. And we can take steps to assure Kay that in darkness or light, upstairs or downstairs, Mother is in her room.

As indeed she is. Everything in Kay's room is us. The comfort of her bed, the warmth of her pink blanket, all derive from our protective care. Kay's room itself exists only as an extension of our desire to shelter her. It is our work and our love made visible.

We mustn't let Kay get to thinking that we can be extinguished by a light switch. We can't be. We're Kay's environment. Once we are wise enough to see it, we'll find it easy to help her feel cozy and safe.

We can't guarantee anyone our constant physical presence. Children outgrow their anxious dependence on it when we ourselves begin to value the love behind the material provisions we make for their comfort.

Opening lead—♠ 6

By OSWALD JACOBY

In today's hand South's opening bid of one no-trump shows balanced distribution, a stopper in at least three suits (probably four), and a count of 16 to 18 points. North can well afford to go to game, since he has balanced distribution and a count of 11 points.

North simply adds his own 11 points to the strength shown by South in the opening bid. The total is bound to be at least 27 points and at most 29 points. This should be enough for game, but not enough for a slam.

West attacks the weak point by leading a spade, and East takes the ace. When East returns his low spade, South hopefully finesses the jack, but West wins with the queen. West leads another spade, dummy discards a diamond, East discards a heart, and South wins with the king.

It is quite clear that South must develop the clubs in order to make his contract. Normally, declarer would take a finesse, hoping to find the king in the East hand. In this case, however, a finesse would lose to West's singleton king, whereupon West would run the rest of the spades to defeat the contract.

South should not risk the finesse in this case. If West has two or more clubs headed by the king, nothing can be done; the contract is bound to go down. If West happens to hold the singleton king of clubs (as he does in this case) he must not be allowed to win a trick with it.

Hence declarer begins his clubs by laying down the ace. West must sadly play his singleton king on declarer's ace, and the rest is easy.

What if the king of clubs happens to be in the East hand? Then South has given up one club trick that he might have won by means of a finesse. However, South can well afford to give up one club trick to East, since East is known to be out of spades.

The point is that South can afford to lose a trick to the non-dangerous opponent but cannot afford to lose a trick to the dangerous opponent.

Yankees and Dodgers Repeat Choices For Flags

New York, April 13 (AP)—Washington and Cincinnati, noted for their early starts and lagging finishes, beat the gun again today as they inaugurate another major league season that promises to provide special interest for the nation's baseball fans.

The world champion New York Yankees and defending National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers, the choice of the experts and betting commissioners alike, ruled heavy favorites to repeat. Cleveland and Chicago, in the American, and New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the National were given outside chances.

Although the Yankees and Dodgers will have little or no change in their lineups, teams in general have undergone tremendous revamping with only 44 per cent of last year's starting lineups back. The batting orders present 22 freshmen, excluding pitchers.

In today's only American League game, Washington engage the Yankees at the nation's capital. Vice President Nixon subs for President Eisenhower in throwing out the first ball.

30,000 in Washington

A crowd of 30,000 was expected to see the Yankees start their bid for an unprecedented fifth straight pennant.. Allie. Reynolds. (20-8), the Yankees' brilliant righthander, was to oppose Bob Porterfield (13-14).

For the first time, the "Presidential" opener was televised on a coast-to-coast hookup (Dumont). Game time is 3 p. m. (EST).

A capacity crowd of some 30,000 was scheduled for Cincinnati's Crosley Field to welcome the Milwaukee Braves back into the big leagues.

All Open Tuesday

All teams swing into action tomorrow when eight games are expected to attract some 231,000 spectators, and bring the total attendance up to 291,000 for the 10 openers. Last year eight openers drew 172,322.

Tomorrow's largest crowd is expected in Cleveland where 55,000 hope to watch a righthanded duel between Saul Rogovin (14-9) of the Chicago White Sox and Bob Lemon (22-11) of the Indians.

The National League's biggest turnout probably will be at Milwaukee where 36,000 are expected to see the improved Braves take on Eddie Stanky's Cards.

Some 25,000 are expected to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers open defense of the National League title against Pittsburgh with righthander Carl Erskine (14-6) on the mound against veteran Murry Dickson (14-21) for the Pirates.

Roberts to Open

The Cubs will face an old jinx in Raffensberger, who has whipped them 27 times while losing only 14, some 25,000 will see righthander Bob Rush (17-13) try to snap the Redleg southpaw's hex.

The St. Louis Browns will have their first night opener in history. Meeting the Detroit Tigers. Some 15,000 will see righthander Ned Garver (8-10) of Detroit—an ex-Brownie—against Virgil Trucks (5-19), traded by Detroit to St. Louis last winter.

The stand-pat Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics will clash at Yankee Stadium before some 40,000. Vic Raschi (16-6), who holds a 24-4 edge over the A's, will be opposed by lefthander Alex Kellner (12-14).

Mel Parnell (12-12), who has whipped Washington 18 times in 31 decisions, will try to maintain his mastery over the Nats before 15,000 in Boston against righthander Walter Masterson (10-9).

Hogan's 274 New Record For Masters

Augusta, Ga., April 13 (AP)—When Ben Hogan, the little perfectionist from Texas, stepped up to accept the $4,000 check for his record-shattering victory in the 17th Masters golf tournament, he said he hoped to return next year and shoot the same caliber of golf.

Byron Nelson, a fellow Texan who has acted as host player since Bob Jones retired, replied: "If Ben Hogan comes back and shoots the same caliber of golf he shot this year, he'll be out there playing all by himself."

The 40-year-old 1951 Masters champion made the beautiful, spacious course look easy with his almost faultless performance. His iron shots and putting were particularly effective.

Not only did he slice 14 strokes off par, but he also bettered the previous tournament record by five strokes. His 70-69-66-69—275 was the third time in Masters history that anyone has managed four sub-par rounds. Par is 36-36—72.

Ed (Porky) Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., shot a 70 yesterday to match the old record of 279 and finish second.

Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., high money winner this winter, made a nice comeback to finish third with 282. Mangrum was far back after the first round when he took a 74, but he pulled into fifth with a 68 and a 70, and moved into third with a three-under-par 69 finish.

Douglas Tyler's 23½-Inch Trout Tops Opening Catches

Douglas Tyler of 1 Murphy street, who with his wife forms one of the best husband-wife fishing combinations in the city, emerged as the No. 1 angler for the first weekend of the 1953 trout season.

Tyler landed a beautiful 23½ inch Brown trout that weighed eight pounds and had a 17-inch girth Saturday in the Ashokan Reservoir.

It was the largest reported catch of the weekend that featured varying results for thousands of anglers who flocked to Ulster county's famous trout habitats.

Creels Filled

Although the fish generally didn't run to the size of the banner opening three year ago, several creel limits were reported.

Fishing conditions were rated from fair to good for Saturday's opener, with some streams roily.

John McQuarey of Oliverea, reported a 5½-pound, 21-inch Rainbow and there were a few others in the 20-to-22 inch category.

President Earl Conro of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County, said a quick survey revealed generally satisfactory catches and fishing conditions. He reported having seen several persons with creel limits.

Patterson 2-1 Over Dick Wagner

New York, April 13 (AP)—Olympic middleweight champion Floyd Patterson gets his big test tonight.

The hard-hitting, 19-year-old Brooklyn Negro takes on rugged, experienced, 26-year-old Dick Wagner of Toppenish, Wash., in the feature eight rounder at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

Winner of all five of his pro bouts by knockouts, the promising youngster has been made 2 to 1 favorite despite Wagner's three straight wins. The west coast light heavyweight will outweigh Floyd by about eight pounds (173 to 165).

The 10 p. m., (EST) bout will be telecast by Dumont.

The Cubs, who lead the National League in the matter of opening-game decisions, have won their last three openers. That figure represents the longest current winning streak in inaugural competition.

The proposed independent baseball league comes up for a final decision tonight at Poughkeepsie. Ah yes, they've said that before, but this is the McCoy.

From here the prospects are not likely to overwhelm promoter Fred Davi, who is accustomed to class semi-pro baseball and once piloted a Connecticut aggregation that whipped four major leagues in exhibition games in one week at Waterbury.

Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Ellenville are definitely in the fold. The other two squads must come from Middletown, a remote chance, Warwick, Walden and Florida. Bill Ryan's Newburgh Jewels open their independent season on May 10 and Davi plans a municipal stadium inaugural on Memorial Day night.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Tony DeLisio, the Woodstock Country Club president, will watch his 35th consecutive Brooklyn Dodger opener at Ebbets Field this week. Tony will merely be protecting the franchise. He owns some Dodger stock. Walter Van Wagenen, coach of the Woodstock Varsity basketball squad and the town baseball nine, recalls, having coached Herb Drescher, former Yankee catcher, at Congers in Rockland county. Woodstock will be without a baseball team this summer, service calls having wiped out almost the entire roster. Some people just don't have any use for money, do they? Since pari-mutuel betting went into effect 13 years ago, New York state has collected $2,368,878 in uncashed ticket money. Uncashed ticket proceeds from the 1952 racing season totalled a record $274,232. Pat "Water Show" Duffy has set up headquarters in Monticello after a winter sojourn at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

• Of Men and Mice:

Here is where you can find those 80,000 trout stocked in county waters by the Phoenicia Fish and Game Association: yearling brown trout, 8 to 9 inches: 5,800, Fenwick brook, Stony Clove to Chichester; 6,800, Woodland Valley, Esopus creek; 6,800, Lanesville, Oxclove; 9,600, Esopus creek, from golf course to Woodland Valley; 7,300, Esopus, Phoenicia to Mt. Tremper up little Beaverkill; 6,000, Stone Clove from Notch Inn to Silver Hollow and up; 9,200, Bushnellville, Broadstreet Hollow, Beaverkill; 10,400, Middy brook, Pantherkill, Woodland Valley and Silver Hollow; 2-year-old trout, measuring from 10 to 14 inches, were put in the Esopus from one mile below Big Indian to Rock cut; 9,000 yearlings are yet to come.

The plantings were managed by the Phoenicia Fish and Game Association under the direction of Hank Bernstein and Floyd Smith. Charles Blood and John Bell of the Conservation Department acted for O. R. Kingsbury, superintendent of fish distribution for the state.

Al Barillari, Gloversville and Port Chester manager during the last reign of OB (and the most colorful of the pack) is recuperating from an operation for a calcified disk. Partially paralyzed by the ailment in Puerto Rico, where he managed the Mayaguez Indians, Barillari flew back from the island for treatment. Specialists attributed his trouble to a growth in the spinal joint, caused by an old sliding injury. Remember George "Sugar" Scherger, dynamic second sacker and manager of the 1947 Kingston Dodgers of the North Atlantic League? He has signed for his second season as manager of Santa Barbara (California). If he can find a capable second baseman, Scherger will do most of his masterminding from the bench this year. Sugar looked like major league managerial timber back in 1947. Something seems to have happened along the way.

Dean Dykstra didn't tell us this story but he'll appreciate it. That one about the legend of the old Sheik, who, on his deathbed, left his son a precious tip from the feed box: "Never work a day. Never play cards with guys who don't work. And never, never take an honest dollar."

It was all the old Sheik had to leave. He had bet on his own horses.

67 High Total

National League clubs scored a total of 67 runs on opening day of the 1900 season, the greatest number of runs ever scored on a first day in the N.L. since that year. Paradoxically, a shutout was scored that day as the Cardinals blanked the Pirates 3-0. Other scores were Philadelphia 19, Boston 17; Chicago 13, Cincinnati 19; Brooklyn 3, New York 2.

Yankees and Dodgers Repeat Choices For Flags

New York, April 13 (AP)—Washington and Cincinnati, noted for their early starts and lagging finishes, beat the gun again today as they inaugurate another major league season that promises to provide special interest for the nation's baseball fans.

The world champion New York Yankees and defending National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers, the choice of the experts and betting commissioners alike, ruled heavy favorites to repeat. Cleveland and Chicago, in the American, and New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the National were given outside chances.

Although the Yankees and Dodgers will have little or no change in their lineups, teams in general have undergone tremendous revamping with only 44 per cent of last year's starting lineups back. The batting orders present 22 freshmen, excluding pitchers.

In today's only American League game, Washington engage the Yankees at the nation's capital. Vice President Nixon subs for President Eisenhower in throwing out the first ball.

30,000 in Washington

A crowd of 30,000 was expected to see the Yankees start their bid for an unprecedented fifth straight pennant.. Allie. Reynolds. (20-8), the Yankees' brilliant righthander, was to oppose Bob Porterfield (13-14).

For the first time, the "Presidential" opener was televised on a coast-to-coast hookup (Dumont). Game time is 3 p. m. (EST).

A capacity crowd of some 30,000 was scheduled for Cincinnati's Crosley Field to welcome the Milwaukee Braves back into the big leagues.

All Open Tuesday

All teams swing into action tomorrow when eight games are expected to attract some 231,000 spectators, and bring the total attendance up to 291,000 for the 10 openers. Last year eight openers drew 172,322.

Tomorrow's largest crowd is expected in Cleveland where 55,000 hope to watch a righthanded duel between Saul Rogovin (14-9) of the Chicago White Sox and Bob Lemon (22-11) of the Indians.

The National League's biggest turnout probably will be at Milwaukee where 36,000 are expected to see the improved Braves take on Eddie Stanky's Cards.

Some 25,000 are expected to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers open defense of the National League title against Pittsburgh with righthander Carl Erskine (14-6) on the mound against veteran Murry Dickson (14-21) for the Pirates.

Roberts to Open

The Cubs will face an old jinx in Raffensberger, who has whipped them 27 times while losing only 14, some 25,000 will see righthander Bob Rush (17-13) try to snap the Redleg southpaw's hex.

The St. Louis Browns will have their first night opener in history. Meeting the Detroit Tigers. Some 15,000 will see righthander Ned Garver (8-10) of Detroit—an ex-Brownie—against Virgil Trucks (5-19), traded by Detroit to St. Louis last winter.

The stand-pat Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics will clash at Yankee Stadium before some 40,000. Vic Raschi (16-6), who holds a 24-4 edge over the A's, will be opposed by lefthander Alex Kellner (12-14).

Mel Parnell (12-12), who has whipped Washington 18 times in 31 decisions, will try to maintain his mastery over the Nats before 15,000 in Boston against righthander Walter Masterson (10-9).

Douglas Tyler's 23½-Inch Trout Tops Opening Catches

Douglas Tyler of 1 Murphy street, who with his wife forms one of the best husband-wife fishing combinations in the city, emerged as the No. 1 angler for the first weekend of the 1953 trout season.

Tyler landed a beautiful 23½ inch Brown trout that weighed eight pounds and had a 17-inch girth Saturday in the Ashokan Reservoir.

It was the largest reported catch of the weekend that featured varying results for thousands of anglers who flocked to Ulster county's famous trout habitats.

In addition to the "big one," Mr. and Mrs. Tyler came up with a couple of 20-inchers.

Creels Filled

Although the fish generally didn't run to the size of the banner opening three year ago, several creel limits were reported.

Fishing conditions were rated from fair to good for Saturday's opener, with some streams roily.

John McQuarey of Oliverea, reported a 5½-pound, 21-inch Rainbow and there were a few others in the 20-to-22 inch category.

President Earl Conro of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County, said a quick survey revealed generally satisfactory catches and fishing conditions. He reported having seen several persons with creel limits.

Patterson 2-1 Over Dick Wagner

New York, April 13 (AP)—Olympic middleweight champion Floyd Patterson gets his big test tonight.

The hard-hitting, 19-year-old Brooklyn Negro takes on rugged, experienced, 26-year-old Dick Wagner of Toppenish, Wash., in the feature eight rounder at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

Winner of all five of his pro bouts by knockouts, the promising youngster has been made 2 to 1 favorite despite Wagner's three straight wins. The west coast light heavyweight will outweigh Floyd by about eight pounds (173 to 165).

The 10 p. m., (EST) bout will be telecast by Dumont.

The Cubs, who lead the National League in the matter of opening-game decisions, have won their last three openers. That figure represents the longest current winning streak in inaugural competition.

Hogan's 274 New Record For Masters

Augusta, Ga., April 13 (AP)—When Ben Hogan, the little perfectionist from Texas, stepped up to accept the $4,000 check for his record-shattering victory in the 17th Masters golf tournament, he said he hoped to return next year and shoot the same caliber of golf.

Byron Nelson, a fellow Texan who has acted as host player since Bob Jones retired, replied:

"If Ben Hogan comes back and shoots the same caliber of golf he shot this year, he'll be out there playing all by himself."

After the way the "retired" Hogan tamed the tough, 6,900-yard Augusta National Club course, his tournament mates probably wish he'd waited until today and played with President Eisenhower during his golfing vacation instead of beating them out of the biggest hunk of prize money.

The 40-year-old 1951 Masters champion made the beautiful, spacious course look easy with his almost faultless performance. His iron shots and putting were particularly effective.

Not only did he slice 14 strokes off par, but he also bettered the previous tournament record by five strokes. His 70-69-66-69—275 was the third time in Masters history that anyone has managed four sub-par rounds. Par is 36-36—72.

Ed (Porky) Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., shot a 70 yesterday to match the old record of 279 and finish second.

Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., high money winner this winter, made a nice comeback to finish third with 282. Mangrum was far back after the first round when he took a 74, but he pulled into fifth with a 68 and a 70, and moved into third with a three-under-par 69 finish.

Trotters Lose Twice

Cincinnati, April 13 (AP)—Harlem's Globetrotters, still weakened by the absence of ailing Goose Tatum, dropped their second straight exhibition basketball game to the College All-Stars last night, 86 to 63. The 23-point victory margin was the greatest recorded by either team in the 17 games they have played in their current cross-country series. The Collegians now have won six games.

The low mark in runs scored on a four-game opening-day stands at 13, the total accumulated by the eight clubs in 1944. St. Louis shut out Pittsburgh 2-0, the Cubs blanked the Reds 3-0, the Phillies beat the Dodgers 4-1 and the Giants edged the Braves 2-1.

Notre Dame Troubles Stress One-Platoon Spring Headache But Irish Will Have '11'

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

Frank Leahy

Under the new NCAA rule, the character builders get no more than 20 days of spring drill. In that time, most of them must convert squads they considered weak at double strength into a compact unit able to go both ways.

Leahy's Problem (?)

Ivy League tutors, who must start from scratch next fall, have their sympathy. The trouble Frank Leahy is having with stumpy Jack Lee at Notre Dame is an indication of what's going on from Florida to Washington. Lee, 185, was a smart, swift and alert middle linebacker last autumn.

"But I'm afraid the poor lad is too small to move a heavier man in front of him when we have the ball," moans Coach Frank Leahy.

College football players have grown.

Returned to Notre Dame are no more than three players who went in both directions. They are guard Menvil Mavraides and the halfbacks, Johnny Lattner and Paul Reynolds.

Yet Leahy, the master caster, contemplates no more than two shifts in position, Art Hunter from end to tackle; and Gene Carrabine from halfback to quarterback.

The shifting of Carrabine means that The Master does not intend to run the risk of the remarkable sophomore quarterbacks of 1952, Tom Carey and Ralph Guglielmi, not being totally satisfactory on defense. Carrabine, also a junior, last season devoted his entire time and attention to stopping the other side.

Blaik's Problems

Red Blaik has a similar problem at Army, where Petie Van is not strong enough to take 60 minutes of hammering. Van must be spelled, further stressing the fact that there will continue to be platoons in some measure. The difference is that they will have to be composed of complete football players. The specialist is a dead duck.

Limited substitutions prompts Pappy Waldorf to predict that more games will be decided on points-after-touchdown.

"Under the platoon system," says the California coach, "every team had a specialist it could send in for conversions. Now you'll see several different players trying for the extra points and the kicking won't be nearly so good."

Irish Are Ready

Notre Dame faces another brutal schedule, opening at Oklahoma, no less. The Irish take the weekend off between Purdue and Pittsburgh to doctor early wounds then sail right through—Georgia Tech, Navy, Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Iowa, Southern California in Los Angeles and Southern Methodist.

Leahy gives the impression he didn't like the platoon plan being junked, but Notre Dame will be around with players next fall. There are the 60-minute halfbacks, Lattner and Reynolds, hard runners like Neil Worden and Bill McHugh, along with the 60-minute guard Mavraides and 16 other linemen who knew their way around last year well enough to lick Oklahoma and Southern California.

"The lads look awful, simply awful," says Frank Leahy.

Rappaport Relinquishes Checkers Championship

William Rappaport of Kingston, the 1952 Mid-Hudson Valley checker champion, relinquished his crown Sunday to William Schwartz, of Poughkeepsie, in a playoff at the Bridge City.

Rappaport and Schwartz finished in a tie in the recent tournament. The players split the first two games of the playoff to create another stalemate. Another four-game set saw Schwartz win two, lose one and gain a draw to annex the crown.

The Hudson Valley championship tournament is scheduled next month at Newburgh.

Dodger Rebellion

The shortest (by innings) opener in National League history was played in 1912 when the Giants thumped the Dodgers 18-3 in a game which saw the fans spill onto the field at the end of the sixth inning. The loyal Dodger rooters staged what amounted to a "sit-down" strike in protest against the treatment administered their heroes which ultimately caused the umpires to call the game.

Two District Agents Join Prudential Club

Palm Beach, Fla., April 13—Floyd R. Beare and John W. Byron of the Kingston district office of the Prudential Insurance Company have arrived here for a meeting of the company's exclusive President's Club, an organization composed of outstanding agents, staff managers and managers in its district agencies.

Byron, staff manager in charge of operations at Saugerties and Beare, an agent in Catskill, won their club membership and attendance at the conference on the basis of sales accomplishments during 1952. They are part of a group of approximately 500 field men representing district offices in upper New York, Illinois, the southwest, and Canada.

A number of company executives, including Carrol M. Shanks, its president, will address the sessions. Conference headquarters are at the Biltmore Hotel.

According to the American Bowling Congress the sport started 7,700 years ago when an inventive Egyptian devised a nine-pin game.

This Turnspit Business

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

"Tolling dogs I have heard of," said Ed. "They're the small yellow or golden dogs something like an undersized golden retriever, that is trained to run back and forth along the shore attracting ducks that become curious at such behavior. But what about this turnspit business?"

Ed and I had been talking about dogs that had been used at one time or the other for special purposes. They had been bred specifically for these purposes but in some cases, as times have changed, they are no longer necessary.

The tolling dogs were used by the Indians, who could not kill or capture waterfowl with arrows, spears, or nets without getting very close to them. Users of earlier short range firearms, too could use tolling dogs. With modern smoothbores there is no further need for these little dogs and they are all but a memory.

"The turnspit dog," I said, replying to Ed's question, "was a long bodied, short legged little dog of definite, but no particular ancestry, used like a squirrel in a cage to run in a wheel. The wheel, attached to a spit, caused the roast to turn, thus assuring our medieval ancestors of an evenly browned morsel.

"There are many such examples of dog specialists. The dachsund and cairn terrier are examples with which most of us are familiar. The sleeve dog, bred to be carried in the sleeves of their Chinese masters and the pocket beagle, only nine or ten inches at the shoulder and carried on horseback in Queen Elizabeth's time to put down when hare or rabbits were flushed, are two whose very size helped them to serve their purposes."

Ed was interested but it was obvious that the sleeve dog business was a bit on the indoor side for him.

"Were there any sporting functions that have gone out?" he asked.

"Yes, Ed. The game little fox terrier is a good example. He is not so named because of any resemblance to the fox, but because he was bred to go to ground to rout or kill and drag out the fox after it had been run to earth by the hounds.

"Fox terriers were carried in saddle baskets. They could then be brought quickly by the grooms to the place where the fox had denned up and released to finish the job started by the hounds.

"Welsh terriers, too, are very proficient fox getters, but the Welshman usually goes hunting afoot with his terrier, locates the fox den and the dog does the rest."

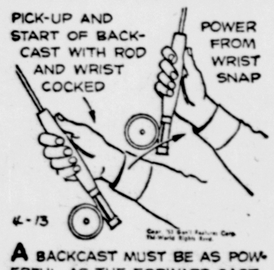
BACKCAST POWER IN FLY CASTING...



A BACKCAST MUST BE AS POWERFUL AS THE FORWARD CAST. THE GRADUAL INCREASE OF ARC AND POWER IN RAISING A FLY ROD MULTIPLIES WHEN COCKED WRIST SNAPS TO THE VERTICAL STOP POSITION. IT PRODUCES A HIGH-FLYING BACKCAST. DELAY FORWARD CAST UNTIL YOU FEEL THE STRAIGHTENING LINE'S PULL, BENDING THE ROD'S TIP... ...BACK TO COCK IT.

Trotters Lose Twice

Cincinnati, April 13 (AP)—Harlem's Globetrotters, still weakened by the absence of ailing Goose Tatum, dropped their second straight exhibition basketball game to the College All-Stars last night, 86 to 63. The 23-point victory margin was the greatest recorded by either team in the 17 games they have played in their current cross-country series. The Collegians now have won six games.

The low mark in runs scored on a four-game opening-day stands at 13, the total accumulated by the eight clubs in 1944. St. Louis shut out Pittsburgh 2-0, the Cubs blanked the Reds 3-0, the Phillies beat the Dodgers 4-1 and the Giants edged the Braves 2-1.

Notre Dame Troubles Stress One-Platoon Spring Headache But Irish Will Have '11'

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

The sun and the baseball clubs have worked their way north.

Frank Leahy

But outside of the Ivy League, the college football coaches don't care what the calendar says. They're up to their elbows trying to turn defensive linebackers into offensive fullbacks and broken field runners into pass defenders.

Under the new NCAA rule, the character builders get no more than 20 days of spring drill. In that time, most of them must convert squads they considered weak at double strength into a compact unit able to go both ways.

Leahy's Problem (?)

Ivy League tutors, who must start from scratch next fall, have their sympathy. The trouble Frank Leahy is having with stumpy Jack Lee at Notre Dame is an indication of what's going on from Florida to Washington. Lee, 185, was a smart, swift and alert middle linebacker last autumn.

"But I'm afraid the poor lad is too small to move a heavier man in front of him when we have the ball," moans Coach Frank Leahy.

College football players have grown.

Returned to Notre Dame are no more than three players who went in both directions. They are guard Menvil Mavraides and the halfbacks, Johnny Lattner and Paul Reynolds.

Yet Leahy, the master caster, contemplates no more than two shifts in position, Art Hunter from end to tackle; and Gene Carrabine from halfback to quarterback.

The shifting of Carrabine means that The Master does not intend to run the risk of the remarkable sophomore quarterbacks of 1952, Tom Carey and Ralph Guglielmi, not being totally satisfactory on defense. Carrabine, also a junior, last season devoted his entire time and attention to stopping the other side.

Blaik's Problems

Red Blaik has a similar problem at Army, where Petie Van is not strong enough to take 60 minutes of hammering. Van must be spelled, further stressing the fact that there will continue to be platoons in some measure. The difference is that they will have to be composed of complete football players. The specialist is a dead duck.

Limited substitutions prompts Pappy Waldorf to predict that more games will be decided on points-after-touchdown.

"Under the platoon system," says the California coach, "every team had a specialist it could send in for conversions. Now you'll see several different players trying for the extra points and the kicking won't be nearly so good."

Irish Are Ready

Notre Dame faces another brutal schedule, opening at Oklahoma, no less. The Irish take the weekend off between Purdue and Pittsburgh to doctor early wounds then sail right through—Georgia Tech, Navy, Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Iowa, Southern California in Los Angeles and Southern Methodist.

Leahy gives the impression he didn't like the platoon plan being junked, but Notre Dame will be around with players next fall. There are the 60-minute halfbacks, Lattner and Reynolds, hard runners like Neil Worden and Bill McHugh, along with the 60-minute guard Mavraides and 16 other linemen who knew their way around last year well enough to lick Oklahoma and Southern California.

"The lads look awful, simply awful," says Frank Leahy.

Rappaport Relinquishes Checkers Championship

William Rappaport of Kingston, the 1952 Mid-Hudson Valley checker champion, relinquished his crown Sunday to William Schwartz, of Poughkeepsie, in a playoff at the Bridge City.

Rappaport and Schwartz finished in a tie in the recent tournament. The players split the first two games of the playoff to create another stalemate. Another four-game set saw Schwartz win two, lose one and gain a draw to annex the crown.

The Hudson Valley championship tournament is scheduled next month at Newburgh.

Dodger Rebellion

The shortest (by innings) opener in National League history was played in 1912 when the Giants thumped the Dodgers 18-3 in a game which saw the fans spill onto the field at the end of the sixth inning. The loyal Dodger rooters staged what amounted to a "sit-down" strike in protest against the treatment administered their heroes which ultimately caused the umpires to call the game.

Two District Agents Join Prudential Club

Palm Beach, Fla., April 13—Floyd R. Beare and John W. Byron of the Kingston district office of the Prudential Insurance Company have arrived here for a meeting of the company's exclusive President's Club, an organization composed of outstanding agents, staff managers and managers in its district agencies.

Byron, staff manager in charge of operations at Saugerties and Beare, an agent in Catskill, won their club membership and attendance at the conference on the basis of sales accomplishments during 1952. They are part of a group of approximately 500 field men representing district offices in upper New York, Illinois, the southwest, and Canada.

A number of company executives, including Carrol M. Shanks, its president, will address the sessions. Conference headquarters are at the Biltmore Hotel.

This Turnspit Business

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

"Tolling dogs I have heard of," said Ed. "They're the small yellow or golden dogs something like an undersized golden retriever, that is trained to run back and forth along the shore attracting ducks that become curious at such behavior. But what about this turnspit business?"

Ed and I had been talking about dogs that had been used at one time or the other for special purposes. They had been bred specifically for these purposes but in some cases, as times have changed, they are no longer necessary.

The tolling dogs were used by the Indians, who could not kill or capture waterfowl with arrows, spears, or nets without getting very close to them. Users of earlier short range firearms, too could use tolling dogs. With modern smoothbores there is no further need for these little dogs and they are all but a memory.

"The turnspit dog," I said, replying to Ed's question, "was a long bodied, short legged little dog of definite, but no particular ancestry, used like a squirrel in a cage to run in a wheel. The wheel, attached to a spit, caused the roast to turn, thus assuring our medieval ancestors of an evenly browned morsel.

"There are many such examples of dog specialists. The dachsund and cairn terrier are examples with which most of us are familiar. The sleeve dog, bred to be carried in the sleeves of their Chinese masters and the pocket beagle, only nine or ten inches at the shoulder and carried or horseback in Queen Elizabeth's time to put down when hare or rabbits were flushed, are two whose very size helped them to serve their purposes."

Ed was interested but it was obvious that the sleeve dog business was a bit on the indoor side for him.

"Were there any sporting functions that have gone out?" he asked.

"Yes, Ed. The game little fox terrier is a good example. He is not so named because of any resemblance to the fox, but because he was bred to go to ground to rout or kill and drag out the fox after it had been run to earth by the hounds.

"Fox terriers were carried in saddle baskets. They could then be brought quickly by the grooms to the place where the fox had denned up and released to finish the job started by the hounds.

"Welsh terriers, too, are very proficient fox getters, but the Welshman usually goes hunting afoot with his terrier, locates the fox den and the dog does the rest."

$102 Billion Ready For '54 Spending

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Former Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill said today the government would have 102 billion dollars to spend next year even if not another dime is appropriated.

Because of this backlog of funds — previously appropriated but still unspent — "emergency measures" are needed to assure tax reductions and a balanced budget, Magill said in testimony prepared for the House Government Operations Committee.

Magill, now president of the Tax Foundation, a non-profit educational group, endorsed a proposal by Rep. Coudert (R.-N. Y.) to limit federal spending to the level of anticipated revenues.

The committee opened public hearings on this controversial bill to compel the Eisenhower administration to balance the budget unless there was a war emergency.

Coudert also has introduced an alternative—a bill placing a top limit of 65 billion dollars on federal spending for the year beginning July 1. Former President Truman's projected budget had listed outlays at about $77,600,000,000 and revenue at $67,700,000,000.

Magill told the committee "the Coudert approach is the best bet for a balanced budget in fiscal 1954 (starting July 1)."

May Seize Milk Plants

Boston, April 13 (AP)—Gov. Herter said today he is considering the prospect of invoking the Slichter Law—which permits him to seize struck plants if public health is endangered—if an afternoon meeting brings no settlement in a milk strike now in its fourth day. The governor said he hoped a meeting scheduled for 1 p. m., between union and company representatives may clarify the situation. "If they do not reach an agreement," Herter said, "then I will have before me the question whether I should act under the Slichter Law."

Aim to Revive Trade

Geneva, Switzerland, April 13 (AP)—Delegates from nearly all Europe's countries, including both parts of Germany, met here in secret today to discuss a possible revival of trade between east and west Europe. The meeting was expected to provide one of the Soviet Union's first opportunities to demonstrate the sincerity of its "peace offensive." The meeting was convened by Gunnar Myrdal of Sweden, executive secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

Hunt Spy Leaders

Bonn, Germany, April 13 (AP)—West German police pushed a nationwide manhunt today for four suspects still at large in connection with a big Russian-directed spy ring which was reported smashed last week. Thirty-nine Germans already have been arrested on charges of collecting industrial and military secrets for the Soviets. The Federal Justice Ministry said arraignment of the suspects might take weeks as police sift evidence against them.

Probe Is in Progress

Local police said today an investigation was in progress to track down the boys responsible for vandalism which left two motor boats in a shed owned by Dwyer Bros., Inc., along the Rondout creek off Abeel street, badly damaged. One boat is owned by former Mayor William F. Edelmuth, and the other by the Dwyers. Both were damaged inside and doors were broken. Detectives Clarence Brophy and Frank Sammons are investigating.

Named 'Boy of Year'

New York, April 13 (AP)—A 16-year-old Knoxville, Tenn., Civil Defense leader today was named "Boy of the Year" from among 360,000 contenders. The selection of John Ed Roberts Jr., was announced as National Boys' Club Week opened. Roberts, the south's regional winner last year, was honored for leadership in his local club and in his community and for his training for the "Citizen of Tomorrow."

Philly to Fluoridate

Philadelphia, April 13 (AP)—Philadelphia will become the largest city in the nation to undertake a fluoridated water plan. Water Commissioner Samuel S. Baxter said yesterday that water treated with fluorine will be pouring from the taps of Philadelphia homes next fall in a move to help prevent tooth decay in children. Six hundred other cities and towns, including San Francisco, already have adopted the program.

Would Brake Jet Landing

Burbank, Calif., April 13 (AP)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has successfully tested a parachute to help brake the landing of a jet fighter plane. A ribbon-type 'chute, popping from the tail of the new F-94C Starfire jet, cuts the plane's runway roll nearly in half, the company announced yesterday. The so-called "parabrake" doubles the life of the plane's regular braking equipment, says the company.

Opera Off on Tour

New York, April 13 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Company is off on its seven-week, 16-city spring tour. Some 310 members of the company left here yesterday aboard a special train. Their first stop is cleveland, where "Rigoletto" is scheduled to open tonight.

Will Bring Home POWs

Lyneham, England, April 13 (AP)—An RAF hospital plane equipped to carry 30 men left today for Japan to bring home sick and wounded prisoners being released by the Communists in Korea under an exchange agreement.

Court Study

1. Administration, structure, procedures and personnel of the courts.
2. Ways of relieving calendar congestion and speeding of justice.
3. Ways of reducing court costs.
4. Desirability of establishing a uniform procedure of selecting jurors.

Dewey also approved two bills affecting life insurance companies. One makes New York the first state to require them to file uniform accounts of income and expenses with the state insurance department.

The other permits life insurance companies to increase their maximum operating expenses, as defined by law, to provide Social Security benefits for their agents.

Dewey also approved a bill that allows omnibuses up to 40 feet long to operate in cities, if approved by local law. Present length is limited to 35 feet. He vetoed a bill that would have allowed 40-foot buses to operate on highways outside cities.

Other Bills Approved

Other bills approved by Dewey: Exempt vehicles owned by other states from the highway use tax in New York. (Sen. John D. Bennett, R.-Rockville Centre).

Include all school employes in the provision that makes school boards liable to claims of negligence in school injury cases.

Continue to Dec. 31, 1954 provisions exempting New York corporations engaged in ocean commerce from paying state and local taxes on capital stock, franchises and savings.

Dewey vetoed a bill that would have prohibited sale of antifreezes that are adulterated or misbranded or for which false claims have been made. (Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese, Jr., R.-Kew Gardens). The State Tax Department advised Dewey that "there seems no valid reason for singling out this particular product."

Sergeant Injures Hand

Sgt. Robert F. Murphy, of the local police, suffered a laceration of the left hand when the porcelain of a faucet at police headquarters broke as he was turning off hot water Sunday morning. He was treated at Kingston Hospital where three stitches were required to close the laceration.

All Diesel Next Fall

New York, April 13 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad will complete conversion of all service east of Cleveland to Diesel-electric locomotives next fall, upon delivery of 164 newly ordered Diesel units, the company has announced last night. It estimated the cost at 27½ million dollars.

Joseph F. Sullivan

In his reply Sullivan ranged reminiscently over the past half century, noting the progress in printing from the old handset method to the modern linotype machine and automatic presses and delighting his audience with humorous anecdotes gathered during his more than half a century of newspaper experience.

Peddled Papers in 1891

Sullivan, who resides with his wife at 50 Staples street, was born in Kingston and began peddling papers for the old Kingston Daily Express. In 1915 he became one of its publishers. In 1918 there was a merger between the Kingston Daily Express and the Kingston Daily Leader and Sullivan went with The Leader for two years.

Sullivan is a Past Grand Knight, Past District Deputy and honorary life member of the Knights of Columbus. He is also honorary president and life member of Union Hose Company and is a charter member and past president of St. Mary's Holy Name Society.

Sullivan was appointed city historian by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk in January of last year.

'Greek Fire'

The navy of the Byzantine empire used "Greek fire" in attacking the enemy and some students believe some of this material was explosive.

Syracuse, April 13 (AP) — A sharp-eyed co-pilot on a departing airliner spotted a fire yesterday on the roof of a large apartment house. Benjamin Peters of Syracuse, outward bound for Washington on a Colonial Airlines plane, notified the control tower at Hancock Field, which relayed the alert to firemen. $102 Billion Ready For '54 Spending

Washington, April 13 (AP)—Former Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill said today the government would have 102 billion dollars to spend next year even if not another dime is appropriated.

Because of this backlog of funds — previously appropriated but still unspent — "emergency measures" are needed to assure tax reductions and a balanced budget, Magill said in testimony prepared for the House Government Operations Committee.

Magill, now president of the Tax Foundation, a non-profit educational group, endorsed a proposal by Rep. Coudert (R.-N. Y.) to limit federal spending to the level of anticipated revenues.

The committee opened public hearings on this controversial bill to compel the Eisenhower administration to balance the budget unless there was a war emergency.

Coudert also has introduced an alternative—a bill placing a top limit of 65 billion dollars on federal spending for the year beginning July 1. Former President Truman's projected budget had listed outlays at about $77,600,000,000 and revenue at $67,700,000,000.

Magill told the committee "the Coudert approach is the best bet for a balanced budget in fiscal 1954 (starting July 1)."

May Seize Milk Plants

Boston, April 13 (AP)—Gov. Herter said today he is considering the prospect of invoking the Slichter Law—which permits him to seize struck plants if public health is endangered—if an afternoon meeting brings no settlement in a milk strike now in its fourth day. The governor said he hoped a meeting scheduled for 1 p. m., between union and company representatives may clarify the situation. "If they do not reach an agreement," Herter said, "then I will have before me the question whether I should act under the Slichter Law."

Aim to Revive Trade

Geneva, Switzerland, April 13 (AP)—Delegates from nearly all Europe's countries, including both parts of Germany, met here in secret today to discuss a possible revival of trade between east and west Europe. The meeting was expected to provide one of the Soviet Union's first opportunities to demonstrate the sincerity of its "peace offensive." The meeting was convened by Gunnar Myrdal of Sweden, executive secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

Hunt Spy Leaders

Bonn, Germany, April 13 (AP)—West German police pushed a nationwide manhunt today for four suspects still at large in connection with a big Russian-directed spy ring which was reported smashed last week. Thirty-nine Germans already have been arrested on charges of collecting industrial and military secrets for the Soviets. The Federal Justice Ministry said arraignment of the suspects might take weeks as police sift evidence against them.

Probe Is in Progress

Local police said today an investigation was in progress to track down the boys responsible for vandalism which left two motor boats in a shed owned by Dwyer Bros., Inc., along the Rondout creek off Abeel street, badly damaged. One boat is owned by former Mayor William F. Edelmuth, and the other by the Dwyers. Both were damaged inside and doors were broken. Detectives Clarence Brophy and Frank Sammons are investigating.

Named 'Boy of Year'

New York, April 13 (AP)—A 16-year-old Knoxville, Tenn., Civil Defense leader today was named "Boy of the Year" from among 360,000 contenders. The selection of John Ed Roberts Jr., was announced as National Boys' Club Week opened. Roberts, the south's regional winner last year, was honored for leadership in his local club and in his community and for his training for the "Citizen of Tomorrow."

Philly to Fluoridate

Philadelphia, April 13 (AP)—Philadelphia will become the largest city in the nation to undertake a fluoridated water plan. Water Commissioner Samuel S. Baxter said yesterday that water treated with fluorine will be pouring from the taps of Philadelphia homes next fall in a move to help prevent tooth decay in children. Six hundred other cities and towns, including San Francisco, already have adopted the program.

Would Brake Jet Landing

Burbank, Calif., April 13 (AP)—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. has successfully tested a parachute to help brake the landing of a jet fighter plane. A ribbon-type 'chute, popping from the tail of the new F-94C Starfire jet, cuts the plane's runway roll nearly in half, the company announced yesterday. The so-called "parabrake" doubles the life of the plane's regular braking equipment, says the company.

Opera Off on Tour

New York, April 13 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Company is off on its seven-week, 16-city spring tour. Some 310 members of the company left here yesterday aboard a special train. Their first stop is cleveland, where "Rigoletto" is scheduled to open tonight.

Will Bring Home POWs

Lyneham, England, April 13 (AP)—An RAF hospital plane equipped to carry 30 men left today for Japan to bring home sick and wounded prisoners being released by the Communists in Korea under an exchange agreement.

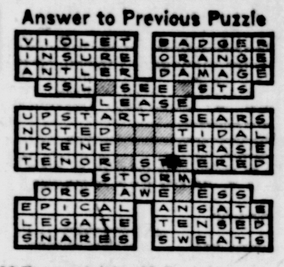
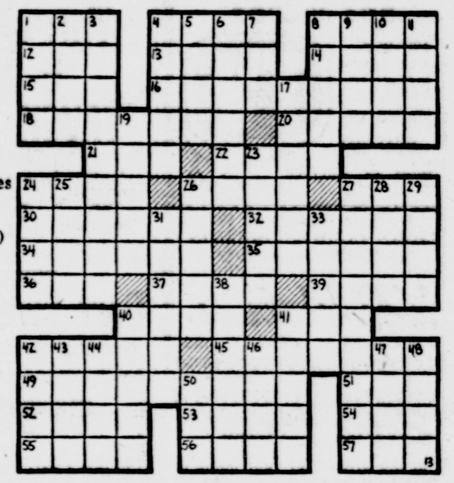
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Court Study

1. Administration, structure, procedures and personnel of the courts.
2. Ways of relieving calendar congestion and speeding of justice.
3. Ways of reducing court costs.
4. Desirability of establishing a uniform procedure of selecting jurors.

Dewey also approved two bills affecting life insurance companies. One makes New York the first state to require them to file uniform accounts of income and expenses with the state insurance department.

The other permits life insurance companies to increase their maximum operating expenses, as defined by law, to provide Social Security benefits for their agents.

Dewey also approved a bill that allows omnibuses up to 40 feet long to operate in cities, if approved by local law. Present length is limited to 35 feet. He vetoed a bill that would have allowed 40-foot buses to operate on highways outside cities.

Other Bills Approved

Other bills approved by Dewey: Exempt vehicles owned by other states from the highway use tax in New York. (Sen. John D. Bennett, R.-Rockville Centre).

Include all school employes in the provision that makes school boards liable to claims of negligence in school injury cases.

Continue to Dec. 31, 1954 provisions exempting New York corporations engaged in ocean commerce from paying state and local taxes on capital stock, franchises and savings.

Dewey vetoed a bill that would have prohibited sale of antifreezes that are adulterated or misbranded or for which false claims have been made. (Assemblyman Anthony P. Savarese, Jr., R.-Kew Gardens). The State Tax Department advised Dewey that "there seems no valid reason for singling out this particular product."

Sergeant Injures Hand

Sgt. Robert F. Murphy, of the local police, suffered a laceration of the left hand when the porcelain of a faucet at police headquarters broke as he was turning off hot water Sunday morning. He was treated at Kingston Hospital where three stitches were required to close the laceration.

All Diesel Next Fall

New York, April 13 (AP)—The New York Central Railroad will complete conversion of all service east of Cleveland to Diesel-electric locomotives next fall, upon delivery of 164 newly ordered Diesel units, the company has announced last night. It estimated the cost at 27½ million dollars.

Joseph F. Sullivan

ing the career of the dean of the local newspaper industry.

In his reply Sullivan ranged reminiscently over the past half century, noting the progress in printing from the old handset method to the modern linotype machine and automatic presses and delighting his audience with humorous anecdotes gathered during his more than half a century of newspaper experience.

Peddled Papers in 1891

Sullivan, who resides with his wife at 50 Staples street, was born in Kingston and began peddling papers for the old Kingston Daily Express. In 1915 he became one of its publishers. In 1918 there was a merger between the Kingston Daily Express and the Kingston Daily Leader and Sullivan went with The Leader for two years.

Sullivan is a Past Grand Knight, Past District Deputy and honorary life member of the Knights of Columbus. He is also honorary president and life member of Union Hose Company and is a charter member and past president of St. Mary's Holy Name Society.

'Greek Fire'

The navy of the Byzantine empire used "Greek fire" in attacking the enemy and some students believe some of this material was explosive.
